THE QUEEN'S BABY

By GUY JONES

The crowd, jostling noisily, pressed hard against the garden railings behind Hamilton Place, in London's Hyde Park. Londoners, Australians, Rhodesians and Pakistanis — their homes were spread far and wide, but their eyes at that moment were fixed on a symbol to them all.

The symbol was a white-shawled baby, gurgling happily on the lawn. Her name: Princess Elizabeth Alexandra Mary Windsor, known to us today as Queen Elizabeth II.

But there was another, more subtle symbol to both baby Princess and commoner behind the Royal home at 145 Piccadilly that summer day in 1930.

The railings that separated them.

From the day she was born in April, 1926, in a private house at London's Bruton Street (near Bond Street), until she was 14, the Commonwealth's child was a captive of protocol and precedent.

High walls, uniformed guards and car windows shielded her from embarrassing public sentiment. Invitations to functions, no matter of what kind, were refused out of hand. A small number of official studio portraits on her birthdays and other exceptional occasions were reluctantly released for publication.

Nursery 'Revolt'

It was in this cloistered, formal world that today's Queen grew up. But will her third child have to do the same? Will it too be a captive in the gilded cage?

The fact is that the Queen and Prince Philip have together wrought a revolution in the Royal nursery.

There is a world of difference between the upbringing of Prince Charles and Princess Anne and that of the young Princess Elizabeth Alexandra Mary Windsor.

At nine, Princess Anne has been sharing her Palace schoolroom with two little girls (Susan Babington Smith and Carolina Hamilton) who are neither royal nor titled.

At 11, Prince Charles is the first king-to-be to attend a preparatory school — £100-a-term Cheam, in Hampshire, where he studies and plays with, among others, the sons of businessmen and journalists.

This, for Royalty, is a revolution indeed.

George VI, the Prince's grandfather, and his great-uncle, the Duke of Windsor, both had private tutors until they were 14 and in that time seldom if ever met the sons of commoners.

Both George III and Queen Victoria lived entirely private childhoods.

The young Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret were never allowed to entertain non-Royal, non-titled or "non-staff" children their own age.

'Palace Guides'

Even when she became a Girl Guide at 11, Elizabeth was allowed to associate only with Guides who belonged to the specially-formed Palace company: relatives, friends of the family and children of the Royal staff — children she would have come across in any case.

The nursery revolution has two main causes — the increasing globe-trotting duties of the Queen, and the influence of Prince Philip, an experimenter by nature.

Time and again since Charles and Anne were born both parents have set out on journeys which their ancestors would have boggled at. Journeys (one of 43,000 miles) which have kept them away from their children for anything from three weeks to five months.

State visits, provincial tours and so on have also accounted

HOLED FREIGHTER ON THE BEACH

Beached with a gaping hole in her port bow, the Northlands Navigation freighter Alaska Prince was deliberately run aground after collision at entrance to Vancouver harbor Monday night to avoid sinking. Refloated this morning, she had to be beached again when a temporary soft patch failed to hold. Another attempt was to be made later. (CP Wirephoto)

ANATOLY BLAGONRAVOV ... for satellite

France Wants Soviet Rocket

NICE, France (UPI) — Soviet space scientist Anatoly Blagonravov said today that French scientists had expressed interest in having a Soviet rocket put a French-made satellite into orbit.

Blagonravov, a leading space authority at the U.S.S.R. Academy of Sciences, said Russia would consider such a joint Soviet-French project if it were proposed officially by the French. The suggestion was understood to have come from an unofficial group of French scientists.

Trade Parley To Set Up 'Brains Trust'

PARIS (CP) — The Western powers were expected today to set up two committees of "wise men" in a bid to avert a European trade war and counter Russia's economic offensive.

The move was likely to be proposed by the United States in a statement at the opening of three days of conferences on economic matters.

Thirteen countries, including Canada, are assembled here for sessions broadly billed as an Atlantic trade conference.

Most delegations are expected to go along with the U.S. plan for two committees, which probably will be larger than the "three wise men" group set up by NATO four years ago.

Defecting Red Dies in Plane

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — A Chinese Communist pilot lost his life today in bidding for freedom with a crash-landing of his MIG jet fighter on Formosa.

The ministry said the MIG took off from the big Communist air base at Lukiao, on the mainland coast between Formosa and Shanghai, and crash-landed 55 minutes later near Yilan, Formosa.

MAGNA BEATS OUT NANAIMO FIRM

Gas Ruling Triggers $25 Million Program

A $25,000,000 program to bring natural gas to Victoria and Vancouver Island homes by late 1961 was launched late Monday when the provincial government approved a charter for Magna Pipeline Company.

Using a flexible steel pipeline under the straits and crossing Galiano and Salt Spring Islands, the firm will bring Peace River natural gas to the island for the first time. Magna will link with the Westcoast Transmission pipeline at Huntingdon in the Fraser Valley.

Magna Pipeline Co. will be a wholesale distributor only, PUC officials explained today. Its first customers, who will retail to consumers in their areas, will be B.C. Electric for Greater Victoria area, and Vancouver Island Gas Company Ltd., Nanaimo.

HIGH PRESSURE

The natural gas will come across the strait and the gulf islands under high pressure, thus making branch distribution on Salt Spring and Galiano unlikely until a distribution company is set up in those areas.

The same situation will exist, PUC officials said, at way points along the route of the gas line between Victoria and Nanaimo. However, the pipeline company plans to spur lines to larger industrial users — Crofton pulp mill, Chemainus saw and planer mill, Harmae pulp mill and Bamberton.

It was also understood from the company's application that natural gas would be made available in the future to the B.C. Power Commission gas turbine generation station at Bare Point, south of Chemainus.

Distribution in the Victoria area, including the Saanich Peninsula, will be entirely within the scope of the B.C. Electric, which will take over the supply line at Partridge Point, northwest of Todd Inlet, where a gate and meters will be installed.

FEEDER LINES

B.C. Electric officials have announced an $11,000,000 five-year expansion project to provide feeder lines throughout this area.

The company anticipates that 80 to 90 per cent of all new buildings in Greater Victoria will install natural gas fixtures when the pipeline is completed.

$14 MILLION

The Magna portion of the overall project, bringing the gas from the mainland, will cost an estimated $14,000,000. The company has given assurance the line will be completed by the fall of 1961, although the PUC has allowed the firm until June 30, 1962, for completion.

Terms of the PUC recommendation, approved by cabinet, call for the firm to make firm contracts for supply of pipe and natural gas, and to file financing plans with the PUC before May 1, 1960.

A Victoria BCE official said:

"This will be a great thing for Vancouver Island. We anticipate the acceptance will parallel that of Vancouver, where 80 to 90 per cent of all new buildings installed natural gas when it became available.

HOUSES TOO

"Because of the low installation cost, it should also entice a large number of householders to convert—especially those now using manual fuels."

The official rates will be competitive with "any other fuel used here."

The PUC decision was announced following hearings in Victoria.

WIRE BRIEFS

Japan to Protest Russ Rocket Shot

TOKYO (UPI) — Foreign Minister Aichihiro Fujiyama indicated today Japan will protest Russia's plan to test-fire rockets into a "danger zone" in the central Pacific.

Fujiyama told the cabinet he will notify the Kremlin that restriction of traffic in a sizeable area of the central Pacific would be "very inconvenient" for Japan.

N.W.T. to Get Fluoridation

OTTAWA (UPI) — The council of the Northwest Territories decided today to fluoridate drinking water in order to help combat tooth decay in the north.

Knut Lang of Akavik, who backed the move, said tooth decay was becoming more prevalent as Indians and Eskimos switched to the white man's food.

Tories Involved in Choice of Premier

QUEBEC (CP) — Jean Lesage, Quebec Liberal leader, said today Progressive Conservative party representatives figured in political councils at Quebec City preceding the choice of Antonio Barrette last week as Union Nationale party leader and premier of Quebec.

Jewish Cemetery Desecrated

NEW YORK (AP) — Nearly 100 headstones and grave markers in a Jewish cemetery on Staten Island were found defaced today with yellow-painted swastikas and various words in German.

Seaman Tries to Stab N.Y. Judge

NEW YORK (AP) — A merchant seaman today attempted to stab federal district Judge John M. Cashin at the U.S. courthouse on Foley Square. The assailant fled and FBI agents began combing the city for him. The seaman, identified as Cecil R. Hall, 56, of New York, was the plaintiff in a personal injury suit.

'Queen of Drug Racket' Slain in U.K.

LONDON (AP) — Mrs. Frances Tucker, self-styled queen of London's drug racket, was battered and burned to death today in her apartment in a run-down tenement building.

Scotland Yard began rounding up known dope peddlers and addicts.

'OL' VIC SAYS:

A cancellation like that is likely to destroy our belief in ferries.

Wonder if that gas pipe from the mainland'll be a two-way job fer when the Legislature's in session?

The fear now is that tradin' blocs will produce tradin' blocks.

Ship Crash Cuts City's Link 7 Days

Elaine Damaged In Fog

Victoria will be without direct ship connection to Vancouver for at least a week.

CPSS Princess Elaine, which provides one round trip daily during the winter months, was damaged in a Monday night collision with the Northland Navigation passenger-freighter Alaska Prince.

The two ships collided in the fog at the entrance to Vancouver harbor shortly before 10 p.m.

Alaska Prince was beached with a gaping 40-foot hole in her side. The Elaine's bow plates were damaged and she went into drydock today for repairs estimated to take five working days.

NO REPLACEMENTS

The CPR has no ships which could take the Elaine's place. Princess Marguerite, Princess Patricia and Princess Louise are in winter "mothballs". Princess Elizabeth and Princess Joan do not have operating licences. The rest of the "Princess" fleet is engaged in the Nanaimo-Vancouver service.

Marguerite is undergoing spring refit at the Belleville Street docks here but will not be ready for three weeks.

As a stopgap while the Elaine is being repaired, the CPR will operate a bus service from the Belleville Dock leaving at 3:30 p.m. daily to connect with the 6 p.m. Nanaimo ferry.

38 PASSENGERS

Damage to the Elaine was confined to buckled plates, and she was able to proceed to dock in Vancouver under her own steam. There were 38 passengers aboard.

The smaller Alaska Prince (originally the Waterhouse Line freighter Chilkoot) was much more severely damaged. Beached after the collision, the 700-ton vessel was refloated at high tide today.

However, she had to be grounded again after proceeding only a short distance when a "soft patch" apparently blew out.

Mattresses and pillows were used to stuff the hole in the port side of the ship.

BEACHED AGAIN

Apparently the patch did not hold as tugs headed toward drydock with the Alaska Prince after she was refloated. She was beached again inside the harbor entrance.

The tug Goblin took the eight passengers off the Alaska Prince. Her sister tugs, Grant and Black Bass, were also in the area and immediately began salvage operations.

DEAD SLOW

Both vessels were reported to have been travelling at dead slow with visibility practically at zero when the collision occurred. The Alaska Prince was carrying a cargo of food and hospital supplies for Vancouver Island ports.

A mercantile insurance spokesman said if the freighter had been hit farther forward.

JAMAICA TO GO ALONE IF FEDERATION FAILS

NORMAN MANLEY ... seeks independence

LONDON (Reuters) — Jamaican Premier Norman Manley has served notice that if the various problems of the West Indies federation cannot be settled Jamaica will seek independence for itself.

The premier is in London for talks with the colonial office on the future of the federation and the financial implications of Jamaica's position in it.

"Jamaica must insist on a form of federation which we think will not disrupt the area as a whole or the economy of Jamaica," he told a press conference Monday. "If that were so, Jamaica would have to get out."

The premier referred to conflicts of opinion between Jamaica and Trinidad, which would like a federation in which the federal centre would have complete economic control.

NEWFOUNDLAND BATTERED

Two Trawlers Lost in Storm

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Two big Icelandic trawlers with about 60 men aboard have been unreported for nearly two days in stormy seas off the wind-battered Newfoundland north coast.

RCAF search and rescue headquarters at nearby Torbay said today the trawlers Uranus and Thormodur Godi, both out of Reykjavik, have not been heard from since Sunday.

The 656-ton Uranus carries a crew of 28. There are about 30 men aboard the 549-ton Thormodur Godi.

Aircraft are standing by at Argentia and Torbay, Nfld., and Goose Bay, Labrador, awaiting better weather to start searching for the vessels.

Winds up to 65 miles an hour were reported in the area Monday.

The gales destroyed a $35,000 federal works department wharf at Elliston in Bonaville Bay.

About 21 inches of snow has fallen on some areas since the storm started Saturday. It was still falling today but the weatherman said drizzle and fog were expected later.

Flood Sweeps Town in Greece

ATHENS (AP) — Rescue teams and salvage crews were rushed today to the stricken town of Comotini in north-east Greece, where floods have destroyed 800 houses and left more than 10,000 homeless.

One person was known dead, four were missing and 10 reported injured.

Comotini, a town of about 35,000 in the region of Thrace, has been turned into a six-foot-deep lake by two days of heavy rains which sent rivers spilling over their banks.

The rampaging waters knocked out bridges, destroyed rail lines, washed away grain-filled storehouses and inundated thousands of acres of cultivated land. Thousands of head of livestock were reported drowned or stranded.

Nine Die as Europe Swamped With Snow

LONDON (Reuters) — At least nine deaths were blamed on freezing weather today as Europe shivered in the grip of winter.

Six died in Spain as Alicante had its first snowfall for 34 years and snow blocked roads between Madrid and Barcelona. Even Algeria was hit by snow, and 90-mile-an-hour gusts blew down a wall onto houses in Oran, injuring five persons.

Snow up to seven inches deep covered sections of England, and thousands of miles of road were icebound.

$15,000 HAUL IN VANCOUVER

Art Thieves Hit Again

VANCOUVER (CP) — City police and RCMP today investigated the second major art theft here in less than two months as an owner of some of the stolen pieces called for intensified security measures in Canada's galleries.

Stolen from the Vancouver Art Gallery Sunday were two irreplaceable Byzantine icons from the Russian royal family collection, eight paintings and 13 other icons assembled for display by Toronto collector Ian Vorres.

Dr. William Dale, director of the gallery, said the loss "could run as high as $15,000."

All the works were insured.

The thieves apparently used the same technique as those who stole $40,000 worth of unrecovered paintings from the University of British Columbia gallery Nov. 10.

The technique of hiding in the gallery at closing time and then working undisturbed apparently was used also in Canada's biggest art theft at Toronto last September when $630,000 worth of paintings were stolen. These were later recovered.

None of the paintings in the UBC theft has been recovered, although some of the frames were later found by children in an east-end dump.

Two of the icons stolen Sunday belong to Grand Duchess Olga, youngest sister of the late Czar Nicholas II of Russia. She lives in Cooksville, Ont. The paintings were the gallery's property, and included works of the English masters William Hogarth, George Romney and William Turner.

Police found a rear door jimmied on the inside of the gallery, but no windows or doors had been forced to gain entry.

Commented Dr. Dale: "I'm afraid this may fix Vancouver as far as the showing of private collections is concerned."

In Toronto, Mr. Vorres said that unless precautions are stepped up collectors "will think twice before handing over their treasures to art galleries in Canada."

SHIP CRASH

ward she probably would have snapped in half.

Passengers aboard the Alaska Prince told a graphic story of fear in the darkness. "There was a tremendous bang and a terrific impact," said Mrs. Lorraine Smith. "Then the lights went out."

"I think that was the worst thing—it was so dark. It was just like a dream."

Mrs. Smith was in a cabin only a few feet from the point of impact when the accident occurred.

"I heard the engines going in reverse," said Ray Skinner, Mrs. Smith's brother-in-law, who was in the same cabin. "The next thing I knew I was lying under a bunk."

The 19 passengers and the six crew members were taken off the freighter by rescue boats. Mr. Skinner and Mrs. Smith were returning to their homes at Alert Bay, B.C., after hospital treatment here.

"She rolled over on her side and everything went flying," said purser Richard Procopie of New Westminster. "But the passengers remained calm. There was no panic."

The Department of Transport was expected to name a board of inquiry to investigate the collision.

Neither the CPR nor Northland Navigation Company, owners of the Alaska Prince, commented on the collision.

But Capt. Edward S. Woodman, 56, of Victoria, skipper of the ferry, said:

"If we had been going full ahead I'm afraid we'd have sent the Prince straight to the bottom."

Capt. Woodman said he knew from radar and radio contact that the Prince was riding out on a four-knot ebb tide.

"So as not to congest the Narrows, I reduced speed and gave her a chance to clear... my vessel was almost at a dead stop and I was in danger of losing control in steering."

"I put on slow speed but the tide caught me and swung the ship around. I was manoeuvring to back out but if I'd moved astern I would have gone into Prospect Point."

RUMORED DIVORCE

French novelist Francoise Sagan from her publisher-husband Guy Schoeller was neither confirmed nor denied today by her lawyer. Report was published in the newspaper France Soir. The two were married in March, 1958.

SHOT AT MARS

WARSAW (Reuters) — A leading Polish astronautical specialist, Dr. Jan Gadomski, was quoted here today as saying the Russians may fire their first interplanetary rocket at Mars April 16.

THE QUEEN'S BABY

for many shorter absences of up to a week.

Compare that with the number of times that the Queen was parted from her parents for more than a day or two right up to the time of her wedding.

Those partings were so few that they stand out as landmarks in her life.

She even went home to Windsor to sleep every night when she was in the ATS during the war. (The khaki-clad ATS—Auxiliary Territorial Service—was Britain's wartime women's army corps. The Queen drove army trucks.)

But it is to Prince Philip that the main cause of the Royal nursery revolution can be attributed. It was he who said: "We want him (Prince Charles) to go to school with other boys of his generation and to learn to live with other children to absorb from childhood the discipline imposed by education with others."

Friends-to-Tea

He it was who said that these words were put into effect, and who encouraged the child Prince to bring classmates "home to tea."

He it was who introduced Charles and Anne at an unprecedented early age to the mysteries of the world outside.

For instance, Charles' first public appearance came when he was two—a visit to London Zoo. When he was five, he sailed with Anne to Tobruk to meet his parents at the end of their Commonwealth tour. At six, he saw his first rugby match, was taken to watch the underground trains, and went for a holiday cruise in the Royal yacht, Britannia.

At seven he met the visiting Khrushchev and Bulganin and saw ballerina assoluta Galina Ulanova at Covent Garden.

The Queen was 12 when she was first allowed to ride on London's underground system; 20 when she was allowed to make her first public bus ride. In fact, when at 18 she made only eight public appearances without her parents.

Conditioning

This unique liberalization will doubtless be continued with the third Royal baby. For it is now accepted that, by getting Royal children accustomed early to the limelight, their later, publicity-hounded years will be more bearable.

Training in the art of being Royal begins at a very early age. And the trainer in the case of the Queen's third child is expected to be a soft-spoken, dark-haired Scotswoman who today lives quietly on the second floor of Buckingham Palace.

She is Mabel Anderson, 33, whose duties for 10 years as personal maid to Princess Anne and Prince Charles have been gradually diminished as the Royal children have grown older.

Courtesy 'Mrs.'

News of the impending birth meant that Mabel's whole life would be changed. For, with Charles away at Cheam and Anne now in her 10th year, there would have been less and less need for her services.

Curiously, "Mrs." Anderson (she is not married; the "Mrs." is a courtesy title given to the senior members of the domestic and nursery staffs) had had no special training for or experience of being in sole charge of a Royal baby.

Previously, she was assistant to Nurse Helen ("Nanna") Lightbody and the tall, dark Glaswegian Katherine ("Miss P.") Peebles, who together began the Royal children's training.

Born at Bootle (Lancashire), the daughter of a Scottish police constable, she went first to a council school and then, when her father was killed in the blitz, moved with her mother to Longmorn, in Scotland, and took a two-year course in domestic science.

Mabel was actually out of work, with her name on the books of an Edinburgh employment agency, when she was chosen as assistant to Nurse Lightbody, who has since left the Palace.

Why was she chosen? It is said that the Queen—then Princess Elizabeth—chose Mabel personally because she had heard of the Scots girl's quietly efficient and unassuming ways.

Japan Trade Policy For 'Orderly Growth'

(From Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker said today his government welcomes the "orderly growth" of Japanese sales in Canada but must bear in mind that "excessive sales" of Japanese goods can have a "disruptive effect" on certain sectors of the economy.

The prime minister made the statements in a letter replying to W. J. Parker, president of Manitoba Pool Elevators.

Mr. Parker wrote to the prime minister on behalf of the Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta wheat pools and the United Grain Growers Limited. He registered objection to the "voluntary" quotas which Japan had been compelled, under pressure from the Canadian government, to apply against certain of its commodities exported for sale in this country.

The pool president pointed out that Japan is the only market in the world at the present time which "gives any promise of taking increasing quantities of wheat."

Mr. Diefenbaker replied:

IMPORTS FREE

"Japan maintains export quotas on a number of products shipped to certain countries other than Canada, and Japanese sales are regulated by import controls in most other countries. Canada does not restrict imports from Japan, and accords Japan most friendly nation treatment."

"However for certain textile and other products Japanese sales have expanded at such a rate as to be a source of serious injury to Canadian producers. In such circumstances it was found desirable to discuss the solution to this problem with the Japanese authorities in order to ensure more reasonable participation in the Canadian market."

"Accordingly Japan maintains a number of voluntary quotas on exports to Canada in the interests of the orderly

The Magna project includes supply lines to Nanaimo and Victoria from a 3,000-horsepower compression station at Ladner.

There will be a 10-inch line to the shore, two six-inch lines to the edge of Roberts Bank, two 4.85-inch lines to Galiano Island, an eight-inch line across Galiano, two 4.85-inch lines across Trincomali Channel, an eight-inch line across Salt Spring Island, two 4.85-inch lines across Stuart Channel and an eight-inch land line to Westholme.

DOES MARGARET SCARE BEAUX AWAY?

PRINCESS MARGARET
... cruel side.

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret will watch another old chum march to the altar Wednesday.

Lady Pamela Mountbatten, the bride-to-be, found romance at 30. This is the age the unmarried Margaret will reach next August.

"Pammy," like Margaret a descendant of Queen Victoria and thus related to practically all that's left of European royalty, is marrying David Hicks, a socially prominent interior decorator. He, too, is 30.

The Royal Family is turning out in fullest available force to make it the biggest thing in weddings since Queen Elizabeth, then a princess, married Prince Philip in 1947.

The Queen herself would be there but for her forthcoming baby.

Despite Lady Pamela's love match, Margaret's own chances of marriage as she approaches 30 are not conspicuously bright.

No potential suitor graces the horizon. And all but the hardest contenders might be given cause to think by a widely read newspaper series purporting to show "a darker shadow to her character."

The author, James Leasor of The Sunday Express, said Margaret seems occasionally over-conscious of her position and over-sharp in criticism of her friends.

He reported that Margaret has "some local reputation for cruelty to young men," and added:

"Many a young fellow nervous at meeting her socially has spent an unhappy evening while she largely ignored him to talk to others."

One man who stands up to her, according to Leasor, is Prince Philip.

He said Philip once ordered Margaret abruptly out of bed to join the family at breakfast — which she prefers to take in her room. Leasor added:

"This treatment, for one born to honor and adulation, was like a dash of cold water."

"Princess Margaret could and did lord it unmercifully over her friends and escorts, but never over her brother-in-law."

PRINCE PHILIP

Licence Fee Reduced For Realtors

A delegation of nearly 30 members of the Victoria Real Estate Board descended on Oak Bay council Monday to protest successful imposition of a $200 yearly trade licence fee.

Council decided in closed committee that this was too stiff and decided the licence fee would be "comparable" to that of other Greater Victoria municipalities which charge $15 and $20 a year.

The $200 trade fee, however, would apply to real estate operators working in Oak Bay from outside the Greater Victoria-Sidney area.

The original fee was set under the "transient" clause of the act.

However, the delegation pointed out that real estate board members were not transients, but closely bound in with Oak Bay and its operations.

LIBERAL SENATOR RAPS 'PUNY' REFUGEE EFFORT

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Senator David A. Croll told a party meeting Monday night Canada's acceptance of 100 refugee families previously refused entry because of tuberculosis was a "puny and pitiful effort."

Oak Bay Votes Down Civic Pay

Oak Bay's "hot and cold" council indemnity question Monday was given thumbs down by majority of the new council as Coun. John Watts demanded the resignation of newly-elected Coun. Percy Noel.

Tempers rose after the vote, which, in effect, kills salary for reeve and council which was up to the new council to adopt or throw out.

(Oak Bay reeve and council have never been paid.) A motion to revoke the by-law was forwarded by Coun. Alan Cox and passed. Coun. Noel favored the motion; Coun. Watts opposed.

CHANGED MIND

Coun. Watts accused Coun. Noel of "a terrible breach of faith" as saying before election he favored council pay and then voted against it.

"I ask for his resignation; a gentleman could do no more."

Coun. Noel countered with "I never said I was in favor of remuneration."

Coun. Watts said it was reported in the press that he did, and it had never been denied. He termed it "a disgraceful situation."

Sure Gas Contracts Needed

(Times News Service)

OTTAWA — Firm sales contracts are needed to justify the expense of a natural gas pipeline to Vancouver Island, the National Energy Board was told Monday.

A forecast of B.C. sales concluded the markets section of the five-man board's inaugural hearing. The five applicants for export to the United States then started on the second round involving gas reserves.

The B.C. picture was outlined Monday by Douglas P. McDonald, vice-president of Westcoast Transmission Company Limited which supplies British Columbia Electric Company and Inland Natural Gas Company. It wants authority to step up exports to the U.S. Pacific Northwest.

Mountains and markets open to competitive oil were factors in forecasting, he said. Electricity and oil were influential in limiting potential gas sales to industry.

He foresaw little change in oil prices.

Reserves in northeastern B.C. and northwestern Alberta far exceed any foreseeable requirements by the B.C. market, he said. No application now before the board involved a supply accessible to the B.C. market aside from the East Kootenays.

The interior population is only 65 per cent accessible to gas, he suggested, and Vancouver Island's population only 50 per cent. Both these should have reached market saturation of 80 per cent about 1970 or 1971.

Mr. McDonald said that the cost of building an underwater link to the island and maintenance costs indicated the need for firm delivery contracts.

The costs would have to be borne by such firm sales, he said, and substantial amounts of gas had been marked for this purpose assuming that cement plants, pulp mills and possibly thermal generating plants would require firm supplies of gas daily.

Sukarno Takes Over All Parties

JAKARTA, Indonesia (Reuters) — President Sukarno of Indonesia today took full control of all the country's political parties, giving himself the power to dissolve them if he thinks necessary.

He also announced the formation of a new mass political organization, to be headed by himself and called the National Front and of a supreme state body to which he will be responsible, called the People's Congress.

The congress will be composed of elected representatives of provinces, present members of parliament and members of "functional groups" nominated by the president.

Sukarno said the task of the National Front will be to complete the country's revolution, further its development and bring West Irian Dutch New Guinea into the Indonesian Republic.

VENEZUELA CRACKS DOWN

Jungle Exile for Rioters

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — President Romulo Betancourt today ordered hard labor in a remote jungle penal colony for 200 rioters blamed for widespread violence in this Venezuelan capital.

Betancourt rushed back from a tour of the interior after roving gangs of young men and others set fire Monday to several business houses and vehicles, looted food shops and attacked police stations and telephone company installations.

Twenty-one persons were reported wounded in clashes with police.

Minor disturbances continued in the suburbs Monday night, but finally police gained control of the last centre of resistance, the Catia district.

'ORGANIZED' RIOT
The rioting was touched off when police broke up a demonstration by about 1,200 unemployed workers demanding jobs. Presidential Secretary Ramon Velazquez said others moved in to carry out "a well-organized plan to create internal problems."

What's Expected of Us?

MAYBE they stage better campaign-launching dinners than Victoria College's committee did last Friday night. If they do, I just haven't been around.

To me the function seemed to have just about everything you could expect. And it was selfishly gratifying to know that the hospitality we enjoyed was provided by people who organized the event and will not come out of the campaign funds. That's generosity.

The nourishment was excellent, for the body and the mind. The intent was to create enthusiasm and enthusiasm was created, but without the too obvious hoopla which sometimes attends functions of this nature.

It was the type of event "Doc" Paul and Percy Elliott would have enjoyed. Nobody, I suppose, has ever been more devoted to the College than those earlier principals—and none has done more to establish its tradition and dignity. They would have noted the tone of the occasion, the right touch it carried.

And they would have chuckled more than most at the pioneer story told by campaign chairman Dick Wilson.

He called upon the gathering to visualize the newly launched crusade for funds in "a true perspective of time and place."

"Let us," he said, "go back to 1862, less than 100 years ago, when my grandfather landed here and promptly went into the clothing business with a built-in public relations department—his brother Joseph. When William sold a suit, Joseph took the satisfied customer down to the 'Brown Jug' to celebrate the event."

Victoria then, he pointed out, was a frontier town imbued with the vision of a great future. The fruits of that vision are the city today. And if the pioneers' vision is to continue, Victoria will provide the funds needed for Victoria College in its new university role.

YOUR HEALTH

I'm not the person to furnish a proper reaction to the decision of the meeting to look well above its $1.5 million target to $2.5 million. In financial matters I find it difficult to count above 10 without taking off my shoes.

But it isn't too difficult for me to visualize Victoria as it was known to Dick Wilson's grandfather and compare it to the city we have today. I've seen the Archives pictures often enough.

And it isn't too hard for me to imagine what can be done in the construction of buildings when I read about what has been done in the construction of atom smashers and moon-rockets. Nor am I so hidebound to the past that I see Victoria apart from the stream of the present century, when nothing is ultimately impossible—even raising $2.5 million locally.

It seems to me that if the pioneers could make this city what it is—and if more energetic pioneers of a later date could make Gastown into present day Vancouver, but it shouldn't be beyond our capacities to push Victoria a step or two further along the road to development with the kind of university it should have.

People did what had to be done to create the capital we know. And we, here and now, happen to be the people collectively who will make Victoria what it is in the immediate future. If we keep the vision to which Dick Wilson referred, we'll make it, among other things, the site of an adequate university—and that takes money.

It isn't for me to say how much the individual should give to the campaign, but if anybody would like a rough idea of how they should respond to the appeal, here's a measuring stick:

First of all, figure out what you're prepared to give. Then anticipate a call from a canvasser suggesting you multiply that amount several times. When he suggests a sum that sets you screaming, just double it and you'll win the warm affection of Victoria College—and be entitled to visit the "Brown Jug" or a modern facsimile thereof.

Help For Alcoholics

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

One of the best books I have found for the helping of alcoholics is "Just One More," by James L. Free (Coward-McCann, $3.50). Mr. Free knows whereof he speaks because he once had trouble with alcohol himself.

His book is full of good advice, and it contains many addresses of organizations, groups of people who will gladly help an alcoholic to get straightened out. Mr. Free describes the several agencies that treat alcoholics, and try to get them off the stuff.

He tells of doctors, antiabuse pills, clergymen, psychiatrists, lay therapists, out-patient clinics, Alcoholics Anonymous, and hospitals and sanatoria.

Mr. Free's description of the stages through which a man goes until he becomes a definite alcoholic is excellent. The first is "drawing a blank," or waking in the morning with no memory of the evening's drinking and associated adventures.

Next comes "sneaking drinks"; a man sitting with friends, having a few cocktails, will go to the men's room and, on the way past the bar, coming and going, will gulp two double bourbons. Later, his wife and friends will wonder how he managed to get drunk on three martinis!

Then he becomes preoccupied with drinking, and before going out to dinner he will have a few snorts, just in case there shouldn't be enough alcohol at the party.

Along the way he starts gulping his drink. Then he gets evasive about his drinking; he won't talk easily about it, as he used to do. Then he begins to have a number of "blanks." After this it takes usually 15 years for the man to end up in a bad row.

As several alcoholics have pointed out, a man becomes an alcoholic the day he loses control over his drinking; when he drinks when he very much does not want to, and shouldn't. He is like the branch manager who goes on a bender the night his president is due in for a visit.

SYNOPSIS — In a few interior valleys and along the north coast skies were overcast Monday night but clear, cool weather prevailed. Fairly extensive fog blanketed the eastern side of the Georgia Strait and this, coupled with freezing temperatures, made road conditions hazardous. A vigorous storm will move into the north Gulf of Alaska this afternoon and a wind warning is in effect for the north coastal area. Rain was expected to begin over the Charlottes by midday with snow along the northern mainland coast by evening. Precipitation will spread to the south coast overnight, falling first as snow but turning to rain later in the day. Snow showers will occur in the Cariboo early Wednesday.

Enriched Uranium Demanded

TORONTO (CP) — Canada should produce enriched uranium, Dr. John Davis of Vancouver urged today at the conference on uranium and atomic energy, now being held under the auspices of the Ontario government.

Dr. Davis, director of research and planning for British Columbia Electric Company, said an enriched uranium project would help develop the North and would find an export market overseas.

The enriching process would use one of the North's large hydro power resources, and he envisaged "another Kitimat."

VARYING NEEDS

He saw a difference in interest between Southern Ontario, with its almost immediate need for electrical energy from nuclear sources, and the rest of the country, which has no such foreseeable need.

Enriched uranium now is principally a product of the United States, while Canada used natural uranium with heavy-water reactors.

Other speakers saw Canada's foreseeable future as largely in the natural uranium field, and use of the heavy-water reactor.

Dr. Davis said few overseas countries wish to buy all their enriched uranium from the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission and an alternative source would have a major appeal.

"I can suggest several sites in northern and central British Columbia for an enriching project. The Peace River is an obvious candidate. So is Grand Falls on the Hamilton River in Labrador."

REMOTENESS NO HARM

"Remoteness is not a serious liability as the tonnage of raw materials and other supplies are relatively small. Few people are required to maintain and operate such a plant."

Dr. Davis commented that utilities in southern Ontario should buy the cheapest and most efficient power stations they can find.

"But," he added, "in many other parts of Canada we are still trying to find a market for some of our more conventional resources. Uranium enrichment could help us."

"Why not package some of the power which we can generate at our northern hydro sites and ship it to other less fortunate parts of the world? Within a decade we would be in this business in a big way."

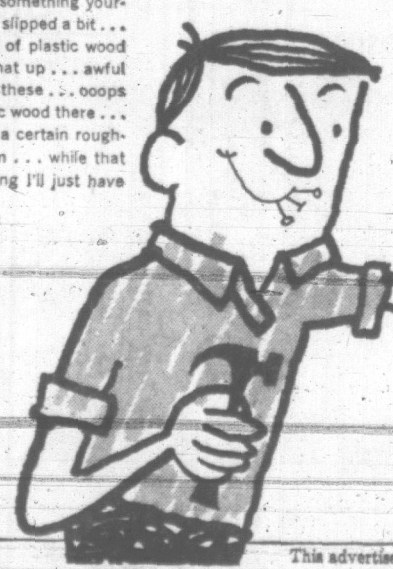

"We will no longer have to plead with the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission to buy most of our ores and concentrates."

OPPOSING VIEW

Dr. G. C. Laurence, director of reactor research and development, Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., used American prepared figures of costs as a basis to support heavy-water reactors as the most economical for production of electric energy.

Dr. Davis and Dr. Laurence's comments were contained in texts made available to the press in advance of delivery.

Boy!... nothing as satisfying as making something yourself... oh well, bit of plastic wood will cover that up... awful weak nails, these... ooops more plastic wood there... it will have a certain rough-hewn charm... while that glue is drying I'll just have time to...

'Conflict' Warning by Labor

TORONTO (CP) — Conflict between management and labor is at a serious stage and may become more serious, Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, said Monday night.

"This is a time when there is need for a better relationship and a closer understanding," he said in an address to the Toronto Board of Trade.

Mr. Jodoin renewed a long-standing congress request for a government-called conference of the two groups "to explore the areas of conflict which exist and to seek methods of overcoming misunderstandings and building up understanding."

'BAD SITUATION'

"It seems to me," the CLC head said, "that there is a tendency at present for a widening of differences... This is a bad situation—it is a serious situation."

"We may be at a turning point which might lead us back to the sharp differences and conflict which we have sometimes known in years gone by."

The present was a very critical time to face such a situation. Great changes in Canada's internal economy were taking place. Canada faced stiffer competition abroad.

"We cannot expect production to be at its best in an atmosphere of conflict... I feel conflict does exist at the moment and... may grow to more serious proportions."

PRESSURE GROUP

As one instance, Mr. Jodoin said the Canadian Chamber of Commerce—of which the Toronto board is a part—is "exerting great pressure on the government at Ottawa for legislation which we feel is directed at weakening the labor movement, and so the whole process of collective bargaining."

WON'T BE RULED OUT—WILLISTON

Share of Peace To Power Board?

By PETE LOUDON

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said today the publicly-owned B.C. Power Commission still stands to share in the electrical energy treasure of the Peace River.

The fact a private company is seeking a water licence to develop the 4,000,000 horsepower potential will not exempt the provincial power production and distribution agency from the project.

The minister recalled in an interview that when the Peace development plan was first mooted, there was a suggestion the public power authority could share in the development. Company Ltd., power is to be made available from the Peace development to the BCPC.

TALK COMING

"The offer has been made, but there has been no serious discussion on it yet. I know the discussion is going to take place. It is big enough and they could all well get in on it," he said.

The minister noted that under the terms of the agreement between the province and Wenner-Gren, Ltd., later taken over by the Wenner-Gren-B.C. Electric subsidiary, Peace River Power Development to the BCPC.

The plans for the Peace scheme were filed late in December by PRPD president W. C. Mainwaring, with the provincial water rights branch. Within three months, the water controller, A. F. Paget, must recommend for or against issuance of a water licence, after examining feasibility of the plans.

Cabinet sources have indicated the scheme will be approved.

HAS RIGHTS

How will the power commission figure in the Peace?

Mr. Williston points out the commission already has the distribution rights for most of the Northern Interior, from Prince Rupert to Dawson Creek, Chetwynd, Fort St. John and Prince George and Fort St. James.

With a potential power grid already set up, it is unlikely

INFORMAL

Mr. Williston wouldn't speculate that far, but he did say, "that's one of the types of problems" for the energy board."

He said the board is getting together fairly frequently.

Some expert opinion, possibly shared by some energy board members, is that the construction of a high-voltage transmission line from the Peace to the lower coast would not be economically feasible for the power commission—or even for the PRPD at present.

If the BCPC were to undertake it, the rental would be prohibitive; if it was otherwise, the strain could collapse the BCPC financial structure.

The power commission would be better advised, these sources said, to concentrate on the more readily available cheap power of the Clearwater, the Kikish, the Columbia and the Homathko.

Advantage in the BCPC building the line would rest with PRPD because of the reduced capital outlay and because the cost of the line would be less—the power commission having access to lower-cost money.

PUBLIC HEARINGS

ROYAL COMMISSION ON TRANSPORTATION

Public hearings will be held in the following cities on the dates and at places indicated:
Winnipeg, Manitoba, February 9-9-10—Provincial Legislative Building, 10:00 a.m.
Regina, Saskatchewan, February 12-13-15—Auditorium, Y.M.C.A., 10:00 a.m.
Edmonton, Alberta, February 16-17-18—Court House, 10:00 a.m.
Victoria, B.C., February 19-20—Empress Hotel, 10:00 a.m.
Vancouver, B.C., February 22-23—Hotel Vancouver, 10:00 a.m.

Briefs are invited from organizations and associations wishing to provide information relating to those sections of the Commission's terms of reference dealing with inequities in the freight rate structure, the obligations and limitations imposed by railways by law for reasons of public policy, the possibilities of achieving more economical and efficient transportation, whether and to what extent the Railway Act should specify what assets and earnings of railway companies in business and investments should be taken into account in establishing freight rates and such other related matter pertaining to the scope of the inquiry.

Submissions (25 copies should be in writing and should reach the Secretary at least 15 days before the commencement of hearings in the city concerned. Copies of the terms of reference of the Commission and further details relating to these hearings may be obtained by writing to the undersigned.

F. W. ANDERSON,
Secretary,

"We think that many of the proposals being made are both unreasonable and unworkable."

Many people felt that laws might once again be used to deprive workers of their organizations. In some instances, the suspicion might be well-founded; in others, not well-founded.

Mr. Jodoin was critical of management's attitude towards health insurance. Labor had been trying to press forward, but the record of employer organizations in this field, as a whole, was poor.

He also accused management of hostility towards a CLC proposal for a royal commission to investigate the relationship of wages, prices and profits. It had been greeted by management with cold silence.

Popular Author Stroke Victim

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — Author Nevil Shute died in hospital tonight after a stroke.

The British author—his real name was Nevil Shute Norway—would have been 61 on Jan. 17.

His latest best-selling novel, On the Beach, was made into a movie. It pictures the last days of the human race after a nuclear war.

Shute, born in Ealing, a suburb of London, emigrated to Australia with his family in 1950, complaining of heavy taxation and government restrictions in England.

Among his best-known books were A Town Like Alice, which was made into a successful film. In the West, Round the Bend, Requiem for a Wren, No Highway, The Far Country, and The Rainbow and the Rose, the last dealing with a Canadian airman.

Last month, the film On the Beach—with a Hollywood cast of Ava Gardner, Gregory Peck, Fred Astaire and Anthony Perkins—was given its premier in 17 cities throughout the world.

But the author refused to attend the Australian premiere, because, he said, he did not like the way his novel had been filmed.

AHL CHALLENGED

Bid
From West

EDMONTON (CP)—The Western Hockey League will challenge the American Hockey League for a play-off at the end of this season, league president Al Leader said Monday night.

Leader said following a league mid-winter meeting prior to the WHL all-star game here tonight that a cup probably will be established should the AHL champions agree to play the WHL champions.

Leader said also that all spearing penalties in future will be accompanied by an automatic fine of $25 and increased by $10 for each additional offence.

All clubs were represented at Monday's session.

WILL DISCUSS CALLS

League directors will meet today with referee-in-chief Bill Knott of Seattle and referees Al Paradise of Winnipeg and Bill Papp of Vancouver to discuss uniformity of calls.

It was to be the first meeting in league history between owners and officials to discuss game officiating.

Leader said that attendance has shown a marked increase in all cities since Christmas and indications are that we'll have one of our best years due to the close and exciting race for playoff positions.

FIRST FOUR PLAY OFF

The first four teams in the WHL will participate in the playoffs. The first-place club and the third-place club will meet in one semi-final while the second-place club and the fourth-place team will meet in another semi-final.

The semi-finals and the finals will be best-of-seven series.

The league all-star teams will be selected for the first time this year from all seven clubs. Previously, one team was selected from Prairie clubs and another from Coast clubs.

Leader announced that the league's annual meeting will be held in Calgary in the first week of May.

Tonight's battle between the Coast and Prairie choices in the seven-team league is expected to attract a crowd of at least 4,000. The Prairie all-stars will be after their first victory. The Coast team won 53 in 1958 and 63 last year.

Gus Kyle of Calgary, coach of the Prairie side, said Gene Achymichuk of Edmonton Flyers will take the place of Calgary's veteran forward Sid Finney who was injured recently.

Gordon Vejprava of Calgary also is on the limp so Kyle has replaced him with team-mate Norm Johnson.

HELSINKI, Finland (Reuters)—Finland has decided not to compete in the hockey tournament of the Winter Olympic Games next month at Squaw Valley, Calif.

Finland's Olympic Games committee announced today that the hockey team was not strong enough to compete in the games and that the costs of sending it to California would have been prohibitive.

At Nanaimo

Annual Vancouver Island Golden Gloves boxing championships will be held in Nanaimo this year.

Officials of the Island and District Amateur Athletic Union, meeting at Chemainus at the weekend, decided to stage the card February 13 at the Hub City's Civic Arena.

No definite date has been set for the Diamond Belt championships, which will likely take place in April.

A spokesman urged interested members of sanctioned clubs to send in their applications for the Golden Gloves to the commission secretary as soon as possible.

IN TRADE

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Philadelphia Phillies Monday traded veteran outfielder Richie Ashburn to the Chicago Cubs for infielder Alvin Dark and two other players—right-handed pitcher John Buzhardt and infielder Jim Woods.

Ashburn, twice winner of the National League batting title, was a member of the Phillies' Whiz Kids which won the pennant in 1950. He has been with the Phillies since coming up to the major leagues in 1948.

Dark, too, hit the majors in 1948. He has hit over .300 until last year. The veteran infielder has appeared in three World Series and two all-star games.

Britons Told To Turn Down
Scholarships

LONDON (AP)—Britain's track and field chiefs Monday bluntly warned the nation's athletes that acceptance of some American university scholarships could lead to a ban on their competing in the United States.

"Get our advice before you accept a scholarship," advised the British Amateur Athletic Board.

The BAAB issued a statement explaining its refusal to let 23-year-old sprinter Dave Segal accept a scholarship to Furman University.

The board ruled the scholarship was offered "solely on the grounds of athletic ability" and warned Segal he would be banned from competing in the United States.

Since this ruling, Chuck Rohe, coach at Furman, has cabled the BAAB and Segal that the athletic scholarship has been withdrawn and that a "general excellence scholarship" will be offered him.

29 FOOTBALL DEATHS

NEW YORK (AP)—Football in 1959 resulted in death to 29 players in the U.S., the largest total since 1947. And four came from heat exhaustion—a danger never previously recognized.

These figures were released in the annual report prepared by Dr. Floyd Eastwood of Los Angeles City College and presented to the American Football Coaches' Association and the National Collegiate Athletic Association's football rules committee.

As a result, the AFCA committee on injuries and fatalities strongly recommended lighter practice whenever the temperature exceeds 80-85 degrees.

POWELL RIVER (CP)—Japan's Olympic hockey team went down to its sixth straight defeat Monday night, losing 8-3 to Powell River Regals of the Pacific Coast Amateur League.

Regals, usually the team to beat in the intermediate PC-AHL, took a first period lead of 2-1, then held a 5-2 edge after the second.

TOP TOTAL SINCE 1947

Heat Exhaustion Grid Danger

The four heat exhaustion deaths were among eleven attributed indirectly to football. There were 18 resulting directly from football injuries, most of them to the head and neck.

Of the direct injuries, seven were incurred in high school football, six in sandlot games, two in semi-pro and three in college football.

The committee also called for increased supervision of sandlot and playground games, re-emphasis of pre-game warmups and further research on helmets, face guards and other equipment.

Dutchies' Methods
All Dutch to DickVerbal Potshots Continue
Against Olympic Hopefuls

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen's Olympic fund mounted Monday. So did verbal commotion about the team's preparations for the Winter Olympics next month.

The fund reached nearly $9,500 with a $1,000 donation from Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

The verbal discord came from a 19-year-old Manitoba member of the Dutchmen and a 32-year-old British Columbia player who was on Canada's 1955 world championship team. Their complaints were denied by team officials and some fellow players.

Cliff Pennington, former junior star with Plin Flon Bombers, said the Dutchmen need a permanent coach and players should be told who will be making the trip to Squaw Valley, Calif., site of the Games Feb. 18-28.

WARWICK TEES OFF

Veteran Dick Warwick, one of three Warwick brothers who gave the drive to the world champion Pentecost V's and roomed with Pennington here, charged the Dutchmen with inadequate preparations for the Olympics, and said their organization was inept, they lacked solidarity and had too many directors.

Warwick tried out with the Dutchmen but didn't make it because he wasn't in good enough shape. He said, however, that he didn't get enough ice time to work himself into condition.

Warwick said it is almost impossible at this stage to envisage the Dutchmen capturing the Olympic title, won by Russia in 1956.

Recently returned from a hockey instructional tour in Poland, he said "the Russians are very strong. The Czechs, Swedes and the United States will give us trouble, too."

BAUER IN CHARGE

Ernie Goman, manager of the Ontario senior club, said Bobby Bauer, interim coach since Bill Durnan resigned about three weeks ago, is "as competent a coach as there is in amateur hockey anywhere in Canada."

Under Bauer's direction, the Dutchmen have won six of their last seven games and are second in the league standings.

Bauer, who coached the Dutchmen when they lost at the 1956 Olympics, said the team welcomed Warwick's offer to help but "Dick simply wasn't in shape."

Goman said Warwick trained seriously some days and not on others. He was "either too old or not capable."

PLAY RUSSIA

The Dutchmen play Russia here Sunday with some players from league-leading Whitby Dunlops in the lineup.

When Whitby plays Russia in Toronto next Tuesday night, some of the Dutchmen may play. The Olympic-bound team will be named a few days afterwards.

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP)—How good is the United States hockey team that will compete in the Winter Olympics at Squaw Valley, Calif. Feb. 18-28?

"It undoubtedly is the strongest team ever to represent the U.S. in Olympic competition and it could wind up anywhere from the winner to fifth place," coach Jack Riley said Monday.

"The squad is so much better than the others, that I have no hesitancy in saying that no more than four or five who played with me in the 1948 Olympics could make this team."

Riley looks for a battle of the big five—Canada, Russia, Sweden, Czechoslovakia and the U.S. He says Japan should be rated the "dark horse." The Japanese are touring British Columbia and have lost all six games to intermediate teams.

MacRae Quartet
In Finals First

COURTENAY—Two Nanaimo rinks and a rink from the Alberni Valley Curling Club reached the Vancouver Island zone curling finals over the weekend, but not before a stiff argument from the two representatives of the Comox Valley Curling Club, which hosted the North play-offs.

Don MacRae's favored Nanaimo rink won its first four games and did not have to play its game on the final draw of the round robin series, against winless Jim Marasco of the Alberni Valley club. But it went down to the last game for Nanaimo's Gene Koster and Alberni Valley's Harry Stirzaker.

Koster outscored MacRae, 13-10, and Stirzaker was an 11-8 winner over Kakoske, but it was a fine performance by the two rinks from the Comox Valley club, which opened operations only last season.

'WHY BLAME WINNER?' TERRIBLE TOMMY ASKS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Golfer Tommy Bolt declined Monday to answer newspaper criticism of his conduct during competition in South Africa a fortnight ago.

"I don't want to make any comment," he said. "What can I say? Just because their man lost a match, why put the blast on me?"

The United States open champion then stalked off to practice putting for the third round of the Los Angeles open, in progress here.

The Express in Johannesburg found fault chiefly with Bolt's colorful language on the links and called him "the worst-mannered golfer ever to visit the union."

TEE TOPICS

By ERNIE FEDERUK

Care to win your next golf game in handy fashion? Try brushing up on the rules.

The average golfer, y'see, rarely completes a round without breaking a rule, intentionally or otherwise.

When Laurie Carroll recently insisted that he could beat "a golfer with an average knowledge of rules" 5 and 4 over a nine-hole match, his challenge was quickly accepted by one, E. Federuk (handicap 23 or so).

Federuk can hardly be considered an average golfer but is, nevertheless, a willing guinea pig.

Carroll, the Oak Bay pro, won all nine holes. Modesty forbids Federuk from mentioning that on at least one par-three hole he had Carroll gassed. Only Mr. Carroll's knowledge of the rules helped him.

These are the rules, called in order, that enabled Laurie to win nine straight holes:

1. Bending or breaking anything fixed or growing (rule 17.3).
2. Hitting flagstick while attended (34.2).
3. Offering advice (9.1).
4. Extra club (3).
5. Failing to call rival for breaking rule (4).
6. Undue delay (37.7).
7. Removing loose impediment from hazard (33.1).
8. Lending club (3.6).
9. Practicing on green during match (8.2).

On some holes, it must be admitted, rules were broken through sheer ignorance. On the first, for example, Federuk pushed his second shot into the woods on the right. In hoping to power (it says here) a good recovery shot to the green, Federuk had to settle up to a spruce that happened to get in the way. One branch caused Federuk's back and Carroll promptly called him on the rule that forbids "moving, bending or breaking anything fixed or growing."

On other holes it must be known that Federuk had Carroll dead to rights. On the second, for instance, a 14-foot putt for a birdie was in all the way.

Best Bet Is to Keep Mouth Shut

But, Carroll, attending the flag, tried to deflect the ball by dropping the pin. The ball touched the pin but, nevertheless, bounced into the cup. The Oak Bay pro had the gall to take the hole by quoting rule 34.2.

Two up and seven to go. On the third, Federuk planned to use a five iron for his approach to the green.

"A four," said Carroll, "would be best." He claimed the hole because of rule 9.1.

Such tactics might have shaken lesser men, but Federuk continued to play in the manner befitting a 23-handicapper.

Carroll won the next hole by slipping one of his clubs into Federuk's bag (when the latter wasn't looking). That was one club too many.

Another sneaky trick won the fifth. Carroll grounded his club in a sand trap when E.F. wasn't looking, then claimed a victory "because his rival failed to call him for breaking a rule."

Carroll had to dig down deep into his bag of tricks to claim the next three holes, but saved his best effort for the ninth. Arriving on the ninth green in regulation figures, Federuk needed only a two-putt to win that hole. He curled a fine 40-footer to within four inches of the cup.

"I'll give you that putt," Carroll announced generously. "Bet you can't do that again," he added and quickly knocked the ball back to Federuk.

Oh E.F. didn't do quite as good, stopping a foot short of the cup. It didn't matter, he finally won a hole.

"No, you did not!" said Carroll.

"You can't practice on the green during a match."

So it ended 9-9 and that, even to a willing guinea pig with a handicap of 23, should prove something.

English Bowlers Find Going Tough

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (Reuters)—Garfield Sobers and Frank Worrell kept the England bowlers toiling unavailingly here Monday to add a record 384 for the West Indies' fourth wicket and give them first innings lead in the opening test.

Sobers (216) and Worrell (177) were still together at the end of the fifth day's play—10½ hours after they came together on Friday.

They have taken the West Indies score from 102 to 486—four runs more than England scored in its first innings.

The partnership was the highest for any wicket by West Indies against England—beating the 338 for the third wicket set by Worrell and Everton Weekes at Port of Spain, Trinidad, in 1953-54.

The previous best stand for the fourth wicket, 283 at Nottingham in 1950, also was held by Worrell and Weekes.

Scoreboard: C. Hunt, C. Swetman, B. Barrington 42; E. Morris, run out 0; R. Kanhai, E. Trueman 40; G. Sobers, not out 216; F. M. Worrell, not out 177; Extras 11.

Total 486. Sobers, 100 not out, his first century against England; and Worrell, 91 not out, steered the first test to what seemed an inevitable draw when they put on 177 in an unfinished fourth wicket partnership Sunday.

At the close West Indies had 279 for three in reply to England's first innings total of 482.

Lowly Peterborough Can Spring Big Upset

LONDON (AP)—Peterborough United, only minor league team remaining in the English Soccer Cup competition, Monday drew mighty Sheffield Wednesday for the fourth round.

The game will be played at Sheffield Jan. 30. Oddsmakers figure Sheffield Wednesday, a first division English League team, at 18-1 in the cup race and Peterborough at 5,000-1.

Among other fourth-round games, which will reduce the field to 32 teams, Tottenham Hotspur, the favorite, plays at Crewe Alexandra, a fourth division team, and Sheffield United is at home to defending champion Nottingham Forest.

The final is scheduled for Wembley Stadium, May 7.

Following are the replay dates for third-round matches which ended in ties Saturday as well as the draw for the fourth round:

TODAY'S GAMES: Burnley vs. Lincoln; Doncaster vs. Bristol Rovers; Preston vs. Stoke.

MONTREAL (CP)—Three Montreal Canadiens, two Detroit Red Wings and one Chicago Black Hawks' player were voted to the National Hockey League first all-star team in the balloting at the half-way mark of the season.

The second team, at this stage, is comprised of two New York Rangers and one player each from Detroit, Montreal, Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins.

Results of the voting released today show right winger Gordie Howe of Detroit as the only unanimous selection, receiving the full 90 points possible. Defenceman Doug Harvey of Montreal received 88.

The voting was done by hockey writers, broadcasters and telecasters in the six NHL cities. A similar ballot will be held at the end of the season and the point totals combined with the first-half vote.

Hull, 21 years old, is the only first-team choice new to all-star selections. Newcomers on the second team are Stanley, Horvath and Prentice.

Plante, Beliveau, Johnson and Bathgate were on last year's first team. Harvey, Pronovost, Howe and Sawchuk made the second team.

Except for Howe, Harvey, Beliveau and Hull, there was a wide choice in the selections. The vote was closest for goal, Plante nosing out Sawchuk by three points.

Closest behind the first-and-second-team choices were: Goal: Glenn Hall, Chicago, 22 points; defence: Armstrong, Boston, 28, Bill Gadsby, New York, 20; centre: Henri Richard, Montreal, 24; right wing: Bernie Geoffrion, Montreal, 33; left wing: Bert Olmstead, Toronto, 25.

Extras: 11. Total 486. Sobers, 100 not out, his first century against England; and Worrell, 91 not out, steered the first test to what seemed an inevitable draw when they put on 177 in an unfinished fourth wicket partnership Sunday.

Cannon Used As Example?

NEW ORLEANS (CP)—All-American Billy Cannon, facing a lawsuit over his services, says he does not want to play for Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League.

"I just don't want to play for the Rams," he said Monday night while returning home from Honolulu where he starred in Sunday's Hula Bowl game.

The Rams, who claim they signed the prized backfielder before he agreed to play for Houston Oilers of the American Football League, filed suit against him in Los Angeles Sunday.

"I guess they have to make an example of someone," said the Louisiana State great. "I do know some boys over in Hawaii had signed with two clubs and the NFL team is going to let them play with the AFL."

Cannon said if the court rules that the Rams have a binding contract with him, he hopes the Rams will trade him. He said he believed the only binding contract he signed was with the Oilers. He agreed to it before leaving the field after the Sugar Bowl here Jan. 1.

The Rams, who made Cannon their No. 1 choice in the NFL draft, say their contract is valid. They also asked the court to stop Cannon playing for anyone else.

"As far as I am concerned," Cannon said, "the Rams have no hold on me. I considered the papers I signed in Philadelphia to be only a tentative agreement—not any binding contract."

The papers bore no date when he signed them, Cannon said, "but I understand they now have a Nov. 20 date on them. I couldn't sign any contract then because the National League prohibits such a contract."

Railwaymen Want Voice In Labor Law

A brief proposing that representatives of organized labor be approached before the government undertakes any changes in labor legislation, was submitted to the B.C. cabinet Monday by the International Railway Brotherhoods.

The brief also asked changes in the Workmen's Compensation Act, a wider highway safety program, elimination of level crossings and increases in social assistance.

The unions asked the government to urge the federal government to reduce down payments and interest on NHA housing and to influence industry toward the hiring of more older men.

A new remotely controlled saw carriage at the Moore-Whittington Lumber Co. Ltd. P-W Sawmill, 2614 Bridge St., is turning out lumber faster and more efficiently than ever.

It was built by Sumner Iron Works of Vancouver, and all components are Canadian. Heart of the unit is the Set control system provided by Elworthy and Co. Ltd., also of Vancouver.

In the earlier days of saw-milling the sawyer, key man in the cutting department, would signal the size of cut he required to the setter on the carriage. The setter, usually strapped to his seat, would make all necessary adjustments while the sawyer would control the forward and backward motion of the log and carriage past the saw to produce boards.

SAWYER IN CONTROL

With this new carriage the setter has been eliminated and the sawyer has full control of all operations. He presses the proper button, and the set works position the log for the size of lumber required. He then sets his carriage in motion to make the actual cut.

It is fast, positive, and makes no mistakes, according to mill superintendent Thomas Wellburn.

LATEST

"It's the most modern carriage on Vancouver Island," he said. "We installed it especially to handle 'peewee' logs, but it is just as efficient on logs up to four feet in diameter."

Modern conditions demand that mill operators get the maximum volume of merchantable material from a log, he said, and this carriage will give from two to three per cent more lumber per log.

"At that rate it will pay for itself quickly," he said.

Sawyers Jim Robinson and George Miners had no trouble learning to use the new equipment, Mr. Wellburn said.

"Now they do all their work at a console," he said.

Guide Hall Tax 'Robbing Youth'

DUNCAN — City council agreed Monday to consider reduction in taxes on the Guide and Scout hall but made no promises to Guide Commissioner Mrs. A. Falconberg after she told them the present taxes of $131 were "robbing our youth".

Mrs. Falconberg noted that several church halls, used for similar purposes, were exempt from taxes and asked for the same consideration.

"Our hall is used six days a week by Scouts and Guides and it is all we can do to balance our books with the little money we take in," she said.

Mayor Jack Dobson said council would give the matter consideration but pointed out that "we receive a great many similar requests."

A request from the Cowichan branch of the SPCA for a grant was turned down by council but the group was given permission to hold a tag day next December.

City clerk Gordon Berry said that the city now turns back to the SPCA 80 per cent of all collections from the sale of dog tags, amounting to around $400 a year.

Blasting Caps Stolen by Yeggs?

(From CP Dispatches)

VANCOUVER — Police said Monday that 3,000 blasting caps and electric detonators, taken from an explosive firm's warehouse in nearby Ladner several weeks ago, may be in the hands of safe crackers in Vancouver.

Police recovered 1,500 of the dangerous caps and appealed to parents in the area to check children's clothing and play areas. They failed to turn up any more of the caps.

Meanwhile, police said a rifle mounted on a tripod was used by expert safe crackers to blast a tunnel into a bank vault.

A 30-06-calibre rifle, equipped with a silencer was fired several times to loosen building planks in the wall of a vault in a branch of the Toronto-Dominion Bank. A total of 39 safety deposit boxes were forced open and an undetermined amount of cash and securities stolen over the week-end.

WICKS CHALLENGED

PRINCE GEORGE — The Prince George local of the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) has asked Labor Minister Wicks to cite one instance where political opinions have resulted in replacement of a member of the union's safety committee.

This minister said last week one cause of a high fatality rate in the forests was a breakdown in the safety committee. He said members of the union who were dedicated to safety have been replaced on the committee because of politics.

Heroism Award To Ex-Victorian

Former Victorian and now superintendent of schools for Campbell River, William Reid, 43, today was named recipient of the Royal Humane Society bronze medal for heroism in rescuing a companion from drowning.

... bronze medal

Last July 1 at Deep Cove he saved non-swimmer H. M. Evans, registrar of the provincial education department, while both were on a fishing trip.

Mr. Reid at that time was an inspector of schools here. He was previously principal of Lansdowne Junior High.

Mr. Evans was in a skiff about 50 yards from shore, approaching their larger fishing boat when choppy waters swamped the skiff.

Mr. Reid saw what was happening from shore. Mr. Evans, fully clothed, went under.

The Victoria inspector plunged in and swam to the drowning man's aid. He was unconscious when reached.

A nearby resident, George Wellburn, came out in his boat and picked the pair out of the water.

Mr. Reid was born in Victoria, educated here, and served as a captain overseas.

Austin Lee Fultz, 1621 Fernwood, $50 and licence suspension for careless driving.

Christmas Crash Sparks $55 Fine

PORT ALBERNI — Thomas Watts, Sr., was fined a total of $55 on two counts here Thursday when convicted of being an Indian in possession of liquor and careless driving. Fines followed a Christmas Day car crash in which Watts' truck rolled across a lawn, over a rockery and into a mud-hole.

Mr. Perrault said in a statement that reiterated remarks made in a speech to a Young Liberal meeting earlier, "the government should meet with representatives of provincial school boards and municipalities to establish the commission terms of reference."

APPLES IN RIVER

PRINCETON — Salvage operations were started Monday on the banks of the Similkameen River here where two trailers loaded with apples plunged off the highway when the brakes of a Canadian Freightways tractor locked. The trailers slid down a 40-foot embankment Sunday and apples from one of the units spewed over the bank.

FAMILY CRUISE PLANNED

Ketch Dragoon Will Be 'Home'

By MONTE ROBERTS

Victoria is renowned throughout the world as the Capital City of British Columbia, the home of lovely year-round gardens, and the jump-off point for those who go down to the seven seas in small ships.

The latest victims of the lure of far-off oceans are the members of the Bruce family. Vern, perhaps best known here as an automobile racer, his wife, and four daughters, the eldest of whom is 11.

They've talked about a leisurely life aboard ship somewhere down South—perhaps the West Indies—and now they've done something about it.

Moored in the Inner Harbor is their home—the not-so-little boat of their dreams, the tall-masted ketch Dragoon, well-known here when she was sailed by Capt. William Holmes.

In the Dragoon, they hope to leave next August with the bowsprit pointing south as soon as they round Cape Flattery.

Meanwhile, they've sold their shore residence to buy their sea-going home.

While the youngsters finish out their school term, the Bruce address will be the Inner Harbor until March, then Esquimalt's Wharf until August.

Meanwhile, there's work aplenty to keep the whole family busy. Dragoon, which has had another owner since being sold by Capt. Holmes, isn't quite the shipshape vessel she was when she left here.

Vern and his helpers are digging in to rectify that, and to make her a ship to delight the eye. An extremely seaworthy boat, Dragoon is also roomy and comfortable inside, an ideal vessel for a family cruise.

CRYSTAL PALACE SITE SUGGESTED; PLANS GOING TO WHITEHALL

He'd Build 'Youth City' for U.K. Visitors

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

What is Youth City? As yet just an idea—the idea of a man who has devoted his life to the youth of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

Major Fred Ney, a native of Victoria, who founded the Commonwealth Youth Movement 23 years ago, wants to build a Youth City for all the thousands of young men and women who visit Britain every year.

Still Vacant

And he would build it on the site of London's Crystal Palace, the fabulous all-glass building that was destroyed by fire in 1936.

"The site is still vacant and I believe the British government could be persuaded to let us use it for that purpose," said Major Ney, who is now spending a few weeks in his home city.

His idea is that different nations of the Commonwealth should erect their own buildings on the Crystal Palace site so that their young citizens could stay in them when visiting Britain.

"Of course," he added with a smile, "we wouldn't want them to shut themselves up in these places and mix only with their own countryfolk. That would be fatal. But the buildings would give them a comfortable base from which they could make their explorations..."

Compare Notes

"Then they could return to Youth City and compare notes on their impressions and experiences."

Major Ney's enthusiasm is so infectious that after listening to him a while you wonder how any government could resist the impact of his idea.

The Youth City project is a result of his concern because many young people from overseas countries have to stay in dingy bed-sitting rooms and unsavory rooming houses when visiting the heart of the Commonwealth.

"Lack of funds is no reason why they should live in the least inspiring areas of London," he says. "Surely we who believe so deeply in the Commonwealth can do better than that."

In Stately Home

Tentative plans for Youth City have already been drawn up and Major Ney will submit them to the British government soon.

He is also planning to set up a United Kingdom headquarters for the Commonwealth Youth Movement in one of those stately homes of England that the old families find so difficult to keep up nowadays.

The main headquarters are in Winnipeg, and there is a reason for this:

"I started the movement in Canada in 1937 and it fanned out from there," said Major Ney. "Young Canadians are particularly adaptable to projects involving people of other races, and they create an impression of confidence and contentedness within the Commonwealth that is valuable to our cause."

To men like Major Ney the Commonwealth is essentially a "cause." In a world torn with strife and conflict, it stands as a family of nations, divided on many issues, but united in a common ideal.

Kept Alive

But, he warns, unless the ideal is kept alive and supported by faith and service it will lose its strength.

"If our Commonwealth is to survive we must give our youth an inspiration comparable with the inspiration Communism is giving its youth..."

and make no mistake the young people of Russia and China are inspired.

"We have gone wrong in preaching that Communism has been promoted by force alone. Those who rebel against it are the few. The majority are inspired by a common faith—and we must match that faith if we are to survive."

For that reason Major Ney outlaws the word "tour" in connection with the numerous visits he arranges between the youth of Commonwealth countries.

These visits are called Quests and the young people are known as Questors (in search of knowledge and truth).

Days of Yore

And another, strangely inspiring, of Questors kneeling before the altar in St. Giles' Cathedral, Edinburgh, in a vigil patterned after the old tradition of knighthood.

It rings a bell somewhere.

ST. JOSEPH'S WAITING LIST HITS NEW-HIGH

Waiting list of patients for admittance to St. Joseph's Hospital today is the highest in hospital history.

Dr. E. N. Boettcher, medical superintendent, said there were 150 patients who could not be accommodated.

"Some are fairly urgent cases," he said.

Monday, some surgery had to be postponed until today because operating rooms were on the go all the time.

There has also been a heavy influx of children suffering from respiratory diseases. Twenty-six beds are filled by these cases, he said.

"The population is growing, but the hospital doesn't."

St. Joseph's has 448 beds for adults and children.

TCA Flights To Vancouver Fogged Down

TCA Victoria - Vancouver flights were still cancelled shortly before 1 p.m. today due to heavy fog covering the mainland airport.

Visibility was zero. The fog was not expected to dissipate until later this afternoon.

There had been no flights between Victoria and Vancouver since 6:30 p.m. Monday.

Flights from Victoria to Seattle have been on schedule.

CLOUDS PREDICTED

It landed at the RCAF station, Comox.

One TCA Super Constellation today and one Monday night bypassed Vancouver and landed at Patricia Bay.

Weather outlook here was for clouds this evening with wet snow turning to rain overnight. It will be cloudy Wednesday.

Temperature here Monday night ranged between 25 and 32 degrees and at noon today temperature was 41.

Similar temperatures are expected Wednesday.

Murison Invited To Tory Caucus In Vancouver

Major-General C. A. P. Murison, who is seeking Progressive Conservative candidacy in Victoria in the next provincial election, has been invited to a Tory candidates caucus in Vancouver Jan. 29.

The caucus is expected to draw up its labor and power policies and a new policy on the export of natural gas, party leader Deane Finlayson said today.

He said the decision to invite Gen. Murison despite the fact he is not yet officially a candidate (Victoria nominating convention comes in February) was based on his knowledge of municipal affairs. The former reeve of North Cowichan was for two years president of the UBCM and originator of the Murison Formula for revised provincial-municipal cost-sharing.

WHEN IN DOUBT... ASK POLICEMAN

Detective Delivers Mail To Right 'Berth' for Sailor

A city detective today took over the role of mailman, for which Mrs. Ena Young, 440 Michigan, is extremely appreciative.

It happened this way: When HMS Newcastle visited here in 1958, a call went out for Victorians to entertain the sailors. The Youngs took Tony Vidler, "a nice country boy" into their home and on a tour up-Island.

Tony wrote the Youngs a couple of times, then lost their address.

So he wrote the city detective office, enclosing a map of where he believed they lived — "there's a garage on the corner opposite a little park."

Today a detective knocked on the Youngs' door and made the delivery.

"It was so nice of the police," said Mrs. Young.

Two City Tugs In Ocean Drama

A Panamanian freighter is drifting helplessly in heavy seas 800 miles east of Japan after breaking loose from the Victoria-owned, Yokohama-based tugboat Cambrian Salvor.

The freighter, with between 30 and 40 crewmen aboard, is down by the head with 14 feet of water in number one hold, and a leak in number two hold, according to word received here by the towboat owners.

The Salvor went to her assistance when the freighter ran out of fuel after suffering two mechanical breakdowns on her way to Japan.

The tug took the freighter in tow in foul weather, but the towing gear broke because the nose-heavy freighter surged in the waves.

ARRIVES THURSDAY

Sudbury II, sister ship to the Salvor and based at Victoria, is fighting her way to the scene and is expected to arrive Thursday. She was at Hiram,

Japan, after completing a tow.

Before the Salvor's towing wire parted, she managed to pass two small pumps and a supply of gasoline to the freighter. As the Gambler is out of fuel, her own pumps will not operate, and the emergency pumps are being operated to contain the water in the hold.

NO FOOD

Exact details of the conditions aboard the freighter are not known, but it is believed the ship has run out of food supplies. There is, of course, no light or heat.

Capt. Harley Blagborne, who has been away from Victoria as master of Sudbury II since last July, returned home by air Saturday.

He has been relieved aboard Sudbury by Capt. Hill Wilson. Master of Cambrian Salvor is Capt. James Van Komodo.

Both tugs are owned by Island Tug and Barge Ltd., Victoria, Vancouver and Yokohama.

City Takes First Step To New Court

Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson today drafted a resolution "to get the ball rolling at last on a family and juvenile court."

The resolution will ask Thursday's council meeting to: Endorse the principle of a joint family and juvenile court for Greater Victoria;

Put enough money in this year's budget to cover the city's share of the expected total operating cost of $12,000 for 1960;

Request Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt to do the same; And send the resolution to the attorney-general's department "for such action as will expedite the establishment" of the court.

The resolution was examined during an hour-long meeting in the mayor's office this morning with finance experts attending.

After it was over, Ald. Wilson, chairman of welfare committee, said she was sure that the resolution would trigger the final and successful push for establishment of a joint court.

"I'm tired of waiting," she said. "Back in 1926 the Women's Canadian Club asked city council to establish such a court and we've waited long enough to do something about it."

Mayor Scourah also said he felt the time had come for definite action to set up the court.

Mrs. Wilson said the total cost of $12,000 "is infinitesimal compared with the benefit. And I think this joint court would save money for all the municipalities."

The city now pays about $6,500 to $7,000 annually for operation of its own juvenile court and proportionate costs are borne by the other municipalities.

Safe Cracking Attempt Fails

An attempt to crack the safe at Veteran Stages Ltd., 728 Herald, was made overnight Monday, probably by the same person who climbed down a skylight at Arnold's Bakery, across the block at 725 Discovery.

At both places nothing was reported missing, police said.

A patrol officer found a rear door at Veteran Stages open at 5:20 a.m. He looked in and saw a hammer lying in front of the safe and found the dial had been struck a sharp blow, but the safe had not opened. Entry had been by way of an insecure window.

Entry to the bakery was discovered at 7:55 a.m. as employees showed up for work.

ASK The TIMES

Q. I would like to know why and since when has the English language adopted the German word "kindergarten."

—N.R.

A. German educator Friedrich Froebel began the kindergarten (garden of children) program in 1837 in Germany to meet educational needs of children aged four to six. It was started by a German name. Kindertages were established in Great Britain and many other countries within 25 years of Froebel's death in 1852. The word has been in common English use since then.

Q. Could you please inform me where I could obtain information on mental hospitals in Canada other than provincial institutions?—M.P.

A. Provincial departments of health and welfare will be able to provide names and addresses of private mental homes. There is only one in B.C., Hollywood Sanatorium, New Westminster.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Want to Look Younger? Join Many on Marathon

I know that it is entirely possible for you to look from five to 10 years younger, eight weeks from now. I have seen it happen to so many in my figure molding classes and thousands of letters from readers tell me the same thing.

It is always very exciting to me to watch the change in a woman from overweight to correct weight, from bulges to curves, from fatigue to more energy and from self-consciousness to self-confidence. There's no doubt about it! Most of us are influenced by the way we look.

Sometimes a loss of weight changes a woman's entire outlook. This is most exciting of all. Many times husbands have thanked me for the change in their wives. One such man said, "It's not only that she looks so much prettier but the change in her personality is amazing. She used to like to swim and dance but had given them up. Now she is enjoying them again. She had lost interest in clothes and therefore had become careless generally about her appearance. She just seems happier and younger."

Well, as most of you know, I am running my eight-week self-improvement marathon this week, the idea being to see how much you can improve your appearance in eight weeks' time, with my help.

Yesterday I told you that you would have to cut your calorie count to from 12 to 1,400 calories a day if you wish to lose from 15 to 20 pounds in eight weeks. I also gave you some general information about how to plan a reducing diet in order to obtain the essentials for health.

Today let me give you some hints about how to make reducing easier.

In the first place do not skip breakfast. It is an accepted fact that the most successful reducers eat breakfast. Divide your daily calorie count into three meals. If you wish you can save some items for in-between meals but be sure that they are counted in the 1,200 calories a day. Some women like to have a glass of skim milk or fruit juice or fresh fruit between meals. You might want to eat some carrot or celery sticks.

Substitute fresh or canned (water-packed) fruit for desserts.

Boil, bake or broil foods. Avoid fried items.

Eat slowly. This is a definite scientific aid to pleasant reducing and has to do with the blood sugar level.

Buy a reducing dressing or make your own, using a tomato juice base. Add onion or garlic or lemon juice or a combination of all.

If you wish to join my marathon for a loss of from 15 to 20 pounds in eight weeks, or to correct or improve some other defect in beauty, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your

TODAY'S RECIPE

STEAMED APPLE PUDDING

One and one-half cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 tablespoons baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg, 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/4 teaspoon allspice, 1/4 cup butter, 1/2 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1/2 cup milk, 1 1/2 cups chopped peeled apple, 1/4 cup seedless raisins.

Sift dry ingredients together. Cream butter and sugar, add egg, beat well. Add the dry ingredients alternately with milk, stirring just until blended. Add apples and raisins. Turn into well-greased quart mold. Cover with its own cover, foil or two thicknesses of brown or waxed paper, secured with string. Place on rack in steamer and pour in boiling water to half depth of mold. Cover tightly, steam 2 hours. Serve with clear vanilla or lemon sauce.

Safety Measures

A rubber mat for use inside the bathtub, and a non-skid mat outside it, will help prevent dangerous falls.

Have Fun Changing Shoes To Match Your Outfits!

There's something quite exciting about shoes that are covered with the same material as your favorite dress or suit. This is the sort of touch that adds individuality to any outfit.

One downtown store specializes in this particular service. Smartest effect is achieved by the use of flowered prints. Shoes that I saw would certainly add a touch of spring to your walk!

Manager of the store tells me that all they need is about 1/4 yard of material in order to recover any shoes. Shoes are completely taken apart, covered and relasted. To really bring your shoes bang up to date with fashion you can have new slim heels put on at the same time.

To recover shoes the charge is $5.75 while for an extra $2 you can have new heels added. Much cheaper than buying a new pair!

Another service that is available at the same store is changing of toes on shoes. If you are tired of one of your conventional pairs of shoes you can have them made into open toe types. Slashed, rounded or V-Type toes cost $1.25.

If you find the long-pointed toe shoes uncomfortable why not have them changed back to the round style? This will cost $3.75.

Check over your shoes now. Imagination and a little money will have you stepping out with a "new look" when spring arrives.

How many times have you found yourself downtown, juggling with bags and parcels in your arms? Avoid this by investing in one of the shopping bags I've seen this week. Large and roomy, of plastic woven mesh, they fold into tiny plastic cases, small enough to pop into any handbag. There's plenty of colors to choose from—blue, green, yellow, grey, black or red. Handy bag and case sells for $1.

Longer days and brighter sunshine will soon have you spending more and more time outside. You'll want to make sure that you look as if you've just stepped out of a handbox—no matter where you are. You'll appreciate one of the two-way mirrors I've seen selling at $1.50. Encased in compact-type cases, are mirrors that are plain one side and magnified on the other. No risks of slip-ups here! Covers are beautifully decorated with pastoral scenes, old world portraits or brocade patterns.

For further information on these phone Penny at EV 2-3131.

'Top-Heavy' Look for Spring Silhouette

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York fashion designers usher in the 1960's with the top-heavy look.

The mid-section is skinny and elongated, a woman gets a choice of narrow or full skirts but Seventh Avenue manufacturers skip the Paris hobble of last season, hemlines remain the same as last spring, shoulders remain rounded, but sleeves never have been bigger or breezier. Sleeves are capped, kimonoed, cut waistline deep, dolmaned, fluted, funneled and flared. And many of them on suits and coats are chopped off at the elbow and above.

The wide, airy sleeve treatments so dominate the New York collections being shown this week to some 250 visiting reporters that Jane Arndt, showroom director for Lord's sportsweat, composed this bit of doggerel:

"Last season, my collars concerned me; 'Before that, I sagged in the sack; 'Between these, I floated winged panels 'With streamers from both side and back, 'Now...these things are no longer vital, 'It's almost too much to believe "That all of the chic that I come well below the hipbone constantly seek for a tunic effect. An increase 'Now depends on the size of in the number of belted and collarless suits and continued popularity for the semi-fitted suit jacket.

Helping to create the top heavy look are bloused effects in suits, dresses and costumes. The New York couture group, with 55 designer members and auxiliary groups, sponsors the semi-annual shows. The group's "watch for" roundup suggested the woman shopper watch for these other major trends for spring:

—A tendency to longer jackets in suits, although there still will be plenty of latitude in choice. Some suit jackets

Double skirts with the tunic almost as narrow as the underlayer; Oriental over-skirts slashed at the sides; skirts box, knife and accordion-pleated.

—Drastically low-cut strapless evening dresses dominate, and there are sleeveless daytime and sports dresses throughout the collections. The slender evening dress and the full-skirted, short formal share honors for dressy occasions.

—In fabrics, chiffon runs throughout the collections and designers now talk in terms of yardage in a skirt; one manufacturer showed an afternoon chiffon using 16 yards of material. Mesh and knit-like textures are important; silk prints abound in dresses and costumes.

—Grey looms large as a spring basic shade; the various tones of beige to bone are popular; strong violet is a favorite with many designers; and white is used for coats and suits as well as dresses.

—Council voted to forward to the necessary authorities requests for retention of a resident judge in Victoria.

LAWYERS FOR WOMEN

Guest speaker, Miss Constance Holmes, traced evolution of laws protecting women and children from their origin in Roman law and ecclesiastical courts.

The vivacious and eloquent speaker highlighted her observations with vivid metaphors, and quotations. "Family life," she said, "has been described as a gathering of adults, children, an occasional animal and common colds."

She pointed out that Canada's progress in the protective laws for women and children dated from, and was patterned on, the Court for Divorce and Marriage Causes, brought into being in England in 1857 during the reign of Queen Victoria.

Regarding custody of children, Miss Holmes said that law courts seldom take children away from their mothers except in the case of quite serious neglect.

"Even in cases where the wife has been proved guilty of adultery, children have been given into the custody of their mother. Welfare of the child is the prime factor in the court's decision."

Miss Holmes, who has maintained her own law practice in Victoria for eight years, graduated from the University of British Columbia in 1951.

She hoped that a Family Court would "soon become a reality" in Victoria and commended formation of a marriage counselling bureau by Family and Children's Service.

TB Treatments Given in Homes

Tuberculosis victims need never be hospitalized. R. J. Hunter emphasized this point at Monday's meeting of the local Tuberculosis Association.

"With modern treatment it doesn't necessarily follow that the social life of the family must be disrupted when tuberculosis is discovered in one of its members. Last year, five of the six new cases found in Victoria were treated by drugs and never saw a hospital."

He outlined the Tuberculosis Society's plan for a survey, "Operation Doorstep," which will be made between Jan. 18 and Feb. 26 in the Greater Victoria area.

Council decided to support a plea for volunteers. Mrs. Bert Noel, president of the council; Mrs. L. Johns, Mrs. R. B. Shaw and Dr. Marion Sherman will act as liaison committee. Affiliate member groups of council will provide volunteers. Drive will require between 250 and 300 volunteers, Mr. Hunter reported.

EX-CON'S WIFE

DEAR ABBY: This is for that mother who thought that death would be easier to bear than the shame of having a loved one in prison. She talks like a fool. Last July my eldest son passed away. Three weeks later my 16-year-old son was sent to a prison camp. He is learning his lesson and getting along fine. He has his whole life before him when he comes home. I hope this letter makes people who have a loved one serving time realize that shame passes with time, but grief stays with you forever. Hold your head up, mother. Your son is coming home some day. MRS. D. Mc-

Have you read Abby's new, best-selling book, "DEAR TEEN-AGER"?

Use Fightin' Words, Gal!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: How do you get rid of a filthy-minded old goat who won't leave you alone? I work in an office and this old lecher is a friend of my boss. He will come in when he knows I am alone and make all sorts of insulting suggestions which are absolutely revolting. He pretends to be kidding, but I know he means it.

When he passes me on the street he squeezes me and very loudly reminds me that his "offer still goes."

I would slap his face but I am afraid it might cost me my job. Don't tell me to quit because jobs are scarce and I have to eat. How do other respectable women handle this problem? SIGN THIS "M"

DEAR "M": A stinging remark is often far more effective than a slap in the face. Tell this kidding-on-the-square character that you are much too busy to bother with him in the office, and much too choosy to bother with him elsewhere.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell that mother whose heart was Summer Party—Plans were made at meeting of the auxiliary to the Multiple Sclerosis Chapter, for a garden party in early July at the Foul Bay Road home of Mrs. Frank Hammond, new president of the group. It was announced that prospective members may attend next meeting of the auxiliary on Feb. 12 at Red Cross House.

breaking because she had a son in prison to quit feeling sorry for herself. MY HUSBAND was in prison and he came out a much better man than he was when he went in. I carried our three-week-old baby 400 miles to visit him

Teaching Mission in February

Dean Brian Whitlow was speaker at annual meeting of the James Bay, Christ Church Cathedral Guild, held last week in the Niagara Street Hall, Mrs. E. Webster presided.

Subject of the address was on the teaching mission to be held in late February and conducted by Rt. Rev. Ernest Reed, Bishop of Ottawa.

Annual reports showed money made during the year had been used for repairs to the hall; contributions to the cathedral, to the Theological College in Vancouver and to the Sunday school.

Officers were named as follows: President, Mrs. Webster; first vice-president, Mrs. M. Raynor; second, Mrs. J. Cotterell; secretary, Mrs. L. Howell; treasurer, Mrs. A. Beesley; sick visitor, Mrs. C. S. Gonnason, and publicity, Mrs. C. F. Watherston.

Oak Bay United Church Setting for Wedding

Neighboring families were united when Patricia Joyce, Anne Windjack, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Windjack, 2039 Byron Street, became the bride of Brian Wilfred Tucker, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Tucker, 2047 Byron Street.

White and yellow chrysanthemums decorated Oak Bay United Church for the ceremony. Rev. A. Calder, officiated. Organist was James Saunders.

Bride entered the church on the arm of her father. Her ballerina-length gown of white lace was cut on classic lines with short sleeves. Chapel-length veil was held in place by a tiara of pearls. She carried a colonial bouquet of red rosebuds.

Bridesmaid, Miss Gail Wilson wore a ballerina-length gown of blue taffeta. Sister of the bride, petite Jean Windjack, was dressed in a party-length gown of blue nylon for her role as flower girl. Both wore bandeaux of white and yellow flowers in their hair and carried a colonial bouquet of white and yellow chrysanthemums.

Best man was Ralph White and ushers were Robert Haire and Don Christensen.

Roy Broughton, uncle of the bride, proposed the bridal toast at a reception held in the Monterey Restaurant, following the ceremony.

Going-away outfit of grey suit, dainty mink hat and brown accessories was chosen by the bride for a honeymoon trip up Island. Couple are now making their new home at 2047 Byron Street.

Installation Ceremony in Centennial United Church

Mrs. R. Philips was installed president of Centennial United Church Evening Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society at a recent meeting. Miss Mary Wilson conducted installation service.

Other officers are: Honorary president, Mrs. J. Alton; past president, Mrs. W. Waddell; vice-president, Miss M. Cargill; recording secretary.

Nursing Veteran Died Sunday

Miss Martha McBride, well-known Victoria nurse who served overseas in the First World War, died Sunday in St. Joseph's Hospital.

She lived at 821 Burdett.

Born in Ireland, Miss McBride graduated in nursing at St. Joseph's in 1911 and served on the staff there before and after war service.

She was a prominent member of St. Joseph's Alumni and the Overseas Nurses' Association and was active in Red Cross work.

She leaves a brother, Richard McBride at Chemainus and a sister, Mrs. Otto Olsen of Seattle.

Rev. Dr. J. L. W. McLean of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church will conduct funeral services at Haywards' funeral chapel on Wednesday at 1.30 p.m., followed by burial at Royal Oak Cemetery.

BEAM MAY AID MIST-BLINDED U.K. AUTOISTS

LONDON (Reuters) — Fog-bound British motorists, one day, may be able to find their way home through the mists by following a beam the way airliners do.

This is one of the results which may follow from a four-mile stretch of experimental road being constructed by the government's road research laboratory.

One section of the experimental road will contain a wire placed a few inches below the surface to guide cars through thick fog.

An adaptation of an American idea, the wire will give off electrical impulses capable of being picked up by two receivers attached to the fronts of cars.

The experimental road is due for completion in June.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Guess I'd better break down and confess taking a payola from Dick Powell, because he's the blabbing type.

"Where's it all going to end?" he asked wearily. "I'm sure the investigators are coming to Hollywood. The headlines grow bigger there."

"When are they going to bring on Jayne Mansfield and say 'This girl is not padded; this girl is all her'?" When I go on, should I take out my shoulder pads and false teeth?"

He was paying me off so subtly I hardly noticed it. "Why should taxpayers pay to investigate a Hedda Hopper-Ed Sullivan feud?" he asked, sipping his coffee at 21.

Powell, the head of Four Star Television, looked across the table—and not under it. "A Hollywood tailor asked if I'd give him clothes credit on a show if he made some suits for Bob Taylor. I said no, unless he asked the sponsor. I was accidentally smart."

"I got into a thing on the Dick Powell Zane Gray Theatre."

"I was supposed to say in an introduction, 'You could always tell who the villain was—he'd rush in and say 'I'll have a bourbon.'"

"No sir, the CBS Continuity Dept. said bourbon implied a case of bourbon from the bourbon industry. If I'd said whisky that would denote scotch. I had to change it to 'drink.'"

You haven't seen his payola to me yet? It's hidden, see? Sneaky.

"I've one squawk," he said. "When this is over, they're going to give the networks complete control—or none. I'm in the TV film business. We sell to all networks. If networks had complete control they wouldn't play anybody's shows but their own. I'm a free enterprise guy."

Powell, whose firm's second in successful shows produced, added:

"Why, when I was a vocalist in Pittsburgh, I used to get 50 bucks to plug a song in a theatre. They gave us beautiful gifts. But it's the same as lobbying in Washington."

"Furthermore," he pointed an accusing finger—"this interview right now is a payola. I'm giving you a present. I'm buying you a cup of tea."

I sat there and drank it, rat that I am!

Flash: The battling Crosbys must have made up real good—because Gary and his brothers just contracted to appear with Papa Bing on his ABC-TV special Feb. 29.

Martha Raye kids her various marriages in her Miami act: "One husband was a cop—I bought him a squad car every year for his birthday." ... Abbe Lane and Xavier Cugat are cancelling much of their U.S. tour so Abbe can make a movie in Rome ... Olivia DeHavilland'll star in "Marriage-Go-Round" in Paris ... H'wood gag: Marlon Brando edited his "One-Eyed Jacks" film from 33½ hours all the way down to 29½ hours.

Earl's Pearl: The nickel hamburger hasn't disappeared. It can be found at the end of a toothpick on a canape tray.

Today's Best Laugh: Carol Haney found the perfect gift for an annoying kid—an electric train with 60 miles of straight track.

Wish I'd Said That: A kid's at the awkward age when he's too old for an allowance, but too young for a credit card.

New opportunities are born every minute. Right now untold wealth awaits the guy who thinks up something to do with those "I Like Rocky" pins. That's earl, brother.

ask Andy

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Jim Stanfield, age 15, of Omaha, Neb., for his question:

Why doesn't it thunder in the winter time?

Last month a great rain storm swept over the wide state of Texas. For hundreds of miles, from the Red River at Shreveport to the mountains at El Paso, the sky wore a gown of dark cloudy grey. In the course of a few days of general rainfall, at least 100 billions of tons of water were dumped on the thirsty ground. Your reporter Andy drove right through that storm and he knows for a fact that at times there were both thunder and lightning. And this was mid-winter, just two weeks before Christmas.

So, it seems the weather can bring thunder during the winter. However, for us, the typical thunderstorm does not build-up so often during the winter. Certain air conditions are necessary for this to happen. And these air conditions are more likely to occur during our hot summer days. But, for example, in Iceland and over the oceans, thunderstorms are more likely to burst forth during the winter time.

A thunderstorm is caused by a conflict in the atmosphere.

Ocean Retains Heat Longer

The watery ocean holds its summer's heat longer than the dry land. It gains little heat on a winter's day, perhaps enough to merely warm the moist air which sits on its surface. At night the upper air cools fast, but the air near the surface stays warm. As the night wears on, a wide temperature range builds up between the surface and the upper air. Most thunderstorms over the ocean occur in winter and after midnight.

The chilly island of Iceland does not get enough summer heat to build up thunderstorm conditions. But during a winter's night, the upper air loses heat and becomes very, very cold indeed. It gets into conflict with the cool air near the surface and thunderstorms burst forth as they do over the oceans on a winter's night.

FOR 'UNIVERSITY' TITLE

College Needs Three 'Yesses'

What's in a name? Plenty, officers of Victoria College are finding out. At least three consents are necessary before the college can officially use the word "university," for which a strong local sentiment has evolved.

At last Friday night's kick-off campaign dinner, Premier

Bennett indicated he would like the institution to be called "the University of Victoria."

This met favor with a large number of the campaign's executive committee, which felt that proper procedure would be to put the new name up to the College Council for decision.

Monday night the council met and discussed the matter.

Legally, the name change must conform to the University Act and have the consent of the University of British Columbia, which is the parent institution. It should also meet the requirements of the Victoria College Act and of the college's faculty board.

"Involved" The council has decided to ask the government to examine the whole question.

"It's a bit involved," principal Harry Hickman admits, "but then, so is the business of a private person changing his name. It has to be done legally."

Likely bet: the eventual, official name will be: "The University of Victoria." Short title: UV.

Power Pole Hit as Truck Turns Turtle

George Weiler, of Langford, decided suddenly to stop at a neighborhood store, put on the brakes and the truck he was driving flipped over when it struck a power pole Monday night on Goldstream Avenue.

Police said Weiler and his wife Ethel, who was riding with him, were not hurt.

When gasoline spilled from the upset pickup, Langford fire department was called and washed the gas away before it caused a further accident.

Weiler told police he drove past the store at which he intended to stop and when he applied brakes to turn around the vehicle went out of control and hit the pole in front of 817 Goldstream.

TO INCLUDE AUDITORIUM

New City Hall Plans Studied

A combined city hall-civic auditorium proposal will be studied as a possible solution to financing a new city hall building.

Special aldermanic committee sifting ideas for a new City Hall Monday called for sketch plans and cost estimates on three concepts:

1. A City Hall-civic auditorium development on the Royal Theatre block with the Royal Theatre serving as the auditorium;

2. A combined City Hall-civic auditorium with both buildings entirely new but located on the same site to save land costs;

3. A separate City Hall on its own site.

PRICE IN REASON

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow proposed the combination of both developments and added that the Royal Theatre, although only accommodating 1,350 seats, should be studied as he felt it could be purchased for a reasonable sum.

Otherwise, preliminary planning will proceed on the basis of a 2,500-seat auditorium.

But Ald. Edgelow dissociated himself from another committee resolution stating that a new City Hall is desirable. It passed with support of Ald. Arthur Dwell, committee chairman, and the third member, Ald. M. H. Mooney.

Although both Ald. Dwell and Ald. Mooney indicated they favored priority being placed on construction of a civic auditorium, they agreed that planning should be started on a new city hall.

They passed a resolution referring to the desirability of having a cornerstone-laying or some other official ceremony connected with a new city hall as early as 1962 when the city celebrates its centenary.

The committee rejected a proposal by Ald. Mooney that Premier W. A. C. Bennett be sounded out to see if his promise of financial assistance for a civic auditorium would still apply in the case of combined city hall-civic auditorium.

City manager C. C. Wyatt said a sketch plan should be prepared before approaching the premier.

"In two or three years we could have a kitty of up to $750,000, and that's a conservative figure, which would go a long way towards a new city hall or a combined city hall-auditorium," Ald. Dwell said, referring to the city lands sales fund.

Reynolds Rd. Improvement Under Study

Reynolds Road and a portion of Cedar Hill Crossroad badly in need of repairs for years may get some attention by the Saanich council this year.

Council at its next meeting will consider a plan for paving and installing curbs and sidewalks on Reynolds between Quadra and Cedar Hill Crossroad.

Cost to ratepayers would be $31,000 and the municipality's share would be $47,000.

Reeve George Chatterton has also recommended to the finance committee, chaired by Coun. Leslie Passmore, that detailed estimates for paving Cedar Hill Crossroad from Richmond to Reynolds be prepared by the engineering department.

Arena Poor Convention Hall—Mayor

Mayor Percy Scurreh Monday opposed a suggestion that Memorial Arena be converted to handle large conventions as well as sports events.

The suggestion was advanced at city finance committee meeting by Ald. Hugh Ramsay who said a curtain to divide the floor and a small addition for catering facilities could probably be installed for about $40,000.

"It will only be a one-horse setup if we do it," replied Mayor Scurreh. "And you are in competition with places that have the proper facilities."

MUCH COMPETITION

"You're not going to get conventions of one, two or three thousand that will go into a barn like that. There are too many places they can get decent accommodation."

The mayor said the arena seating arrangements and acoustics are poor and diverting attention from the drive for a new auditorium might kill enthusiasm.

"Premier Bennett has promised a large contribution toward an auditorium and we ought to devote our efforts toward a large auditorium and convention hall," he said.

THIRD OF SERIES

THE QUEEN'S BABY

By GUY JONES

The crowd, jostling noisily, pressed hard against the garden railings behind Hamilton Place, in London's Hyde Park. Londoners, Australians, Rhodesians and Pakistanis — their homes were spread far and wide, but their eyes at that moment were fixed on a symbol to them all.

The symbol was a white-shawled baby, gurgling happily on the lawn. Her name: Princess Elizabeth Alexandra Mary Windsor, known to us today as Queen Elizabeth II.

But there was another, more subtle symbol to both baby Princess and commoner behind the Royal home at 145 Piccadilly that summer day in 1930. The railings that separated them.

From the day she was born in April, 1926, in a private house at London's Bruton Street (near Bond Street), until she was 14, the Commonwealth's child was a captive of protocol and precedent.

High walls, uniformed guards and car windows shielded her from embarrassing public sentiment. Invitations to functions, no matter of what kind, were refused out of hand. A small number of official studio portraits on her birthdays and other exceptional occasions were redemptively released for publication.

Nursery 'Revolt'

It was in this cloistered, formal world that today's Queen grew up. But will her third child have to do the same? Will it too be a captive in the gilded cage?

The fact is that the Queen and Prince Philip have together wrought a revolution in the Royal nursery.

There is a world of difference between "the upbringing of Prince Charles and Princess Anne and that of the young Princess Elizabeth Alexandra Mary Windsor.

At nine, Princess Anne has been sharing her Palace schoolroom with two little girls (Susan Babington Smith and Carolina Hamilton) who are neither royal nor titled.

At 11, Prince Charles is the first king-to-be to attend a preparatory school — £100-a-term Cheam, in Hampshire, where he studies and plays with, among others, the sons of businessmen and journalists.

This, for Royalty, is a revolution indeed.

George VI, the Prince's grandfather, and his great-uncle, the Duke of Windsor, both had private tutors until they were 14-and in that time seldom if ever met the sons of commoners.

Both George III and Queen Victoria lived entirely private childhoods.

The young Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret were never allowed to entertain non-Royal, non-titled or "non-staff" children their own age.

'Palace Guides'

Even when she became a Girl Guide at 11, Elizabeth was allowed to associate only with Guides who belonged to the specially-formed Palace company: relatives, friends of the family and children of the Royal staff — children she would have come across in any case.

The nursery revolution has two main causes—the increasing globe-trotting duties of the Queen, and the influence of Prince Philip, an experimenter by nature.

Time and again since Charles and Anne were born both parents have set out on journeys which their ancestors would have boggled at. Journeys (one of 43,000 miles) which have kept them away from their children for anything from three weeks to five months.

State visits, provincial tours and so on have also accounted

France Wants Soviet Rocket

NICE, France (UPI)—Soviet space scientist Anatoly Blagonravov said today that French scientists had expressed interest in having a Soviet rocket put a French-made satellite into orbit.

Blagonravov, a leading space authority at the U.S.S.R. Academy of Sciences, said Russia would consider such a joint Soviet-French project if it were proposed officially by the French. The suggestion was understood to have come from an unofficial group of French scientists.

Trade Parley To Set Up 'Brains Trust'

PARIS (CP)—The Western powers were expected today to set up two committees of "wise men" in a bid to avert a European trade war and counter Russia's economic offensive.

The move was likely to be proposed by the United States in a statement at the opening of three days of conferences on economic matters.

Thirteen countries, including Canada, are assembled here for sessions broadly billed as an Atlantic trade conference.

Most delegations are expected to go along with the U.S. plan for two committees, which probably will be larger than the "three wise men" group set up by NATO four years ago.

The ministry said the MIG took off from the big Communist air base at Lukiao, on the mainland coast between Formosa and Shanghai, and crash-landed 55 minutes later near Yilan, Formosa.

MAGNA BEATS OUT NANAIMO FIRM

Gas Ruling Triggers $25 Million Program

A $25,000,000 program to bring natural gas to Victoria and Vancouver Island homes by late 1961 was launched late Monday when the provincial government approved a charter for Magna Pipeline Company.

Using a flexible steel pipeline under the straits and crossing Galiano and Salt Spring Islands, the firm will bring Peace River natural gas to the island for the first time. Magna will link with the Westcoast Transmission pipeline at Huntingdon in the Fraser Valley.

Magna Pipeline Co. will be a wholesale distributor only. PUC officials explained today. Its first customers, who will retail to consumers in their areas, will be B.C. Electric for Greater Victoria area, and Vancouver Island Gas Company Ltd., Nanaimo.

Terms of the PUC recommendation, approved by cabinet, call for the firm to make firm contracts for supply of pipe and natural gas, and to file financing plans with the PUC before May 1, 1960.

A Victoria BCE official said:

This will be a great thing for Victoria. We anticipate the acceptance will parallel that of Vancouver, where 80 to 90 per cent of all new buildings installed natural gas when it became available.

HOUSES TOO

"Because of the low installation cost, it should also entice a large number of householders to convert—especially those now using manual fuels."

The official rates will be competitive with "any other fuel used here."

The PUC decision was announced following hearings in Victoria.

WIRE BRIEFS

Japan to Protest Russ Rocket Shot

TOKYO (UPI)—Foreign Minister Aichihiro Fujiyama indicated today Japan will protest Russia's plan to test-fire rockets into a "danger zone" in the central Pacific.

Fujiyama told the cabinet he will notify the Kremlin that restriction of traffic in a sizeable area of the central Pacific would be "very inconvenient" for Japan.

N.W.T. to Get Fluoridation

OTTAWA (UPI)—The council of the Northwest Territories decided today to fluoridate drinking water in order to help combat tooth decay in the north.

Knut Lang of Aklayik, who backed the move, said tooth decay was becoming more prevalent as Indians and Eskimos switched to the white man's food.

Tories Involved in Choice of Premier

QUEBEC (CP)—Jean Lesage, Quebec Liberal leader, said today Progressive Conservative party representatives figured in political councils at Quebec City preceding the choice of Antonio Barrette last week as Union Nationale party leader and premier of Quebec.

Jewish Cemetery Desecrated

NEW YORK (AP)—Nearly 100 headstones and grave markers in a Jewish cemetery on Staten Island were found defaced today with yellow-painted swastikas and various words in German.

Seaman Tries to Stab N.Y. Judge

NEW YORK (AP)—A merchant seaman today attempted to stab federal district Judge John M. Cashion at the U.S. courthouse on Foley Square. The assailant fled and FBI agents began combing the city for him.

The seaman, identified as Cecil R. Hall, 56, of New York, was the plaintiff in a personal injury suit.

'Queen of Drug Racket' Slain in U.K.

LONDON (AP)—Mrs. Frances Tucker, self-styled queen of London's drug racket, was battered and burned to death today in her apartment in a run-down tenement building.

Scotland Yard began rounding up known dope peddlers and addicts.

A cancellation like that is likely to destroy our belief in ferries.

Wonder if that gas pipe from the mainland'll be a two-way job fer when the Legislature's in session?

Th' fear now is that tradin' blocs will produce tradin' blocs.

Ship Crash Cuts City's Link 7 Days

Elaine Damaged In Fog

Victoria will be without direct ship connection to Vancouver for at least a week.

CPSS Princess Elaine, which provides one round trip daily during the winter months, was damaged in a Monday night collision with the Northland Navigation passenger-freighter Alaska Prince.

The two ships collided in the fog at the entrance to Vancouver harbor shortly before 10 p.m.

Alaska Prince was beached with a gaping 40-foot hole in her side. The Elaine's bow plates were damaged and she went into drydock today for repairs estimated to take five working days.

NO REPLACEMENTS

The CPR has no ships which could take the Elaine's place.

Princess Marguerite, Princess Patricia and Princess Louise are in winter "mothballs". Princess Elizabeth and Princess Joan do not have operating licences. The rest of the "Princess" fleet is engaged in the Nanaimo-Vancouver service.

Marguerite is undergoing spring refit at the Belleville Street docks here but will not be ready for three weeks.

As a stopgap while the Elaine is being repaired, the CPR will operate a bus service from the Belleville Dock leaving at 3:30 p.m. daily to connect with the 6 p.m. Nanaimo ferry.

38 PASSENGERS

Damage to the Elaine was confined to buckled plates, and she was able to proceed to dock in Vancouver under her own steam. There were 38 passengers aboard.

The smaller Alaska Prince (originally the Waterhouse Line freighter Chilkoot) was much more severely damaged. Beached after the collision, the 700-ton vessel was refloated at high tide today.

However, she had to be grounded again after proceeding only a short distance when a "soft patch" apparently blew out.

Mattresses and pillows were used to stuff the hole in the port side of the ship.

BEACHED AGAIN

Apparently the patch did not hold as tugs headed toward drydock with the Alaska Prince after she was refloated. She was beached again inside the harbor entrance.

The tug Goblin took the eight passengers off the Alaska Prince. Her sister tugs, Grant and Black Bass, were also in the area and immediately began salvage operations.

DEAD SLOW

Both vessels were reported to have been travelling at dead slow with visibility practically at zero when the collision occurred. The Alaska Prince was carrying a cargo of food and hospital supplies for Vancouver Island ports.

A mercantile insurance spokesman said if the freighter had been hit farther for

JAMAICA TO GO ALONE IF FEDERATION FAILS

NORMAN MANLEY
... seeks independence

LONDON (Reuters)—Jamaican Premier Norman Manley has served notice that if the various problems of the West Indies federation cannot be settled Jamaica will seek independence for itself.

The premier is in London for talks with the colonial office on the future of the federation and the financial implications of Jamaica's position in it.

"Jamaica must insist on a form of federation which we think will not disrupt the area as a whole or the economy of Jamaica," he told a press conference Monday. "If that were so, Jamaica would have to get out."

The premier referred to conflicts of opinion between Jamaica and Trinidad, which would like a federation in which the federal centre would take complete economic control.

NEWFOUNDLAND BATTERED

Two Trawlers Lost in Storm

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Two big Icelandic trawlers with about 60 men aboard have been unreported for nearly two days in stormy seas off the wind-battered Newfoundland north coast.

RCAF search and rescue headquarters at nearby Torbay said today the trawlers Uranus and Thormodur Godi, both out of Reykjavik, have not been heard from since Sunday.

The 656-ton Uranus carries a crew of 28. There are about 30 men aboard the 849-ton Thormodur Godi.

Aircraft are standing by at Argentia and Torbay, Nfld., and Goose Bay, Labrador, awaiting better weather to start searching for the vessels.

Winds up to 65 miles an hour were reported in the area Monday.

The gales destroyed a $35,000 federal works department wharf at Elliston in Bonaville Bay.

About 21 inches of snow has fallen on some areas since the storm started Saturday. It was still falling today but the weatherman said, drizzle and fog were expected later.

Flood Sweeps Town in Greece

ATHENS (AP)—Rescue teams and salvage crews were rushed today to the stricken town of Comotini in north-east Greece, where floods have destroyed 800 houses and left more than 10,000 homeless.

One person was known dead, four were missing and 10 reported injured.

Comotini, a town of about 35,000 in the region of Thrace, has been turned into a six-foot-deep lake by two days of heavy rains which sent rivers spilling over their banks.

The rampaging waters knocked out bridges, destroyed rail lines, washed away grain-filled storehouses and inundated thousands of acres of cultivated land. Thousands of head of livestock were reported drowned or stranded.

Nine Die as Europe Swamped With Snow

LONDON (Reuters)—At least nine deaths were blamed on freezing weather today as Europe shivered in the grip of winter.

Six died in Spain as Alicante had its first snowfall for 34 years and snow blocked roads between Madrid and Barcelona. Even Algeria was hit by snow, and 90-mile-an-hour gusts blew down a wall onto houses in Oran, injuring five persons.

Snow up to seven inches deep covered sections of England, and thousands of miles of road were icebound.

Art Thieves Hit Again

VANCOUVER (CP)—City police and RCMP today investigated the second major art theft here in less than two months as an owner of some of the stolen pieces called for intensified security measures in Canada's galleries.

Stolen from the Vancouver Art Gallery Sunday were two irreplaceable Byzantine icons from the Russian royal family collection, eight paintings and 13 other icons assembled for display by Toronto collector

Tan Vorres.

Dr. William Dale, director of gallery, said the loss "could run as high as $15,000." All the works were insured.

The thieves apparently used the same technique as those who stole $40,000 worth of unrecovered paintings from the University of British Columbia gallery Nov. 10.

The technique of hiding in the gallery at closing time and then working undisturbed apparently was used also in Canada's biggest art theft at Toronto last September when $500,000 worth of paintings were stolen. These were later recovered.

None of the paintings in the UBC theft has been recovered, although some of the frames were later found by children in an east-end dump.

Two of the icons stolen Sunday belong to Grand Duchess Olga, youngest sister of the late Czar Nicholas II of Russia. She lives in Cooksville, Ont. The paintings were the gallery's property, and included works of the English masters William Hogarth, George Romney and William Turner.

Police found a rear door jammed on the inside of the gallery, but no windows or doors had been forced to gain entry.

Commented Dr. Dale: "I'm afraid this may fix Vancouver as far as the showing of private collections is concerned."

In Toronto, Mr. Vorres said that unless precautions are stepped up collectors "will think twice before handling over their treasures to art galleries in Canada."

He'd Build 'Youth City' for U.K. Visitors

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

What is Youth City?

As yet just an idea—the idea of a man who has devoted his life to the youth of the British Commonwealth of Nations. Major Fred Ney, a native of Victoria, who founded the Commonwealth Youth Movement 23 years ago, wants to build a Youth City for all the thousands of young men and women who visit Britain every year.

Still Vacant

And he would build it on the site of London's Crystal Palace, the fabulous all-glass building that was destroyed by fire in 1936.

"The site is still vacant and I believe the British government could be persuaded to let us use it for that purpose," said Major Ney, who is now spending a few weeks in his home city.

His idea is that different nations of the Commonwealth should erect their own buildings on the Crystal Palace site so that their young citizens could stay in them when visiting Britain.

"Of course," he added with a smile, "we wouldn't want them to shut themselves up in these places and mix only with their own countryfolk. That would be fatal. But the buildings would give them a comfortable base from which they could make their explorations..."

Compare Notes

Then they could return to Youth City and compare notes on their impressions and experiences.

Major Ney's enthusiasm is so infectious that after listening to him a while you wonder how any government could resist the impact of his idea.

The Youth City project is a result of his concern because many young people from overseas countries have to stay in dingy bed-sitting rooms and unsavory rooming houses when visiting the heart of the Commonwealth.

"Lack of funds is no reason why they should live in the least inspiring areas of London," he says. "Surely we who believe so deeply in the Commonwealth can do better than that."

In-Statelike Home

Tentative plans for Youth City have already been drawn up and Major Ney will submit them to the British government soon.

He is also planning to set up a United Kingdom headquarters for the Commonwealth Youth Movement in one of those stately homes of England that the old families find so difficult to keep up nowadays.

The main headquarters are in Winnipeg, and there is a common ideal.

"I started the movement in Canada in 1937 and it fanned out from there," said Major Ney. "Young Canadians are particularly adaptable to projects involving people of other races, and they create an impression of confidence and contentedness within the Commonwealth that is valuable to our cause."

To men like Major Ney, the Commonwealth is essentially a "cause." In a world torn with strife and conflict, it stands as a family of nations, divided on many issues, but united in a common ideal.

Kept Alive

But, he warns, unless the ideal is kept alive and supported by faith and service it will lose its strength.

"If our Commonwealth is to survive we must give our youth an inspiration comparable with the inspiration Communism is giving its youth..."

and make no mistake the young people of Russia and China are inspired.

"We have gone wrong in preaching that Communism has been promoted by force alone. Those who rebel against it are the few. The majority are inspired by a common faith—and we must match that faith if we are to survive."

For that reason Major Ney outlaws the word "four", in connection with the numerous visits he arranges between the youth of Commonwealth countries.

These visits are called Quests and the young people are known as Questors (in search of knowledge and truth).

Days of Yore

And another, strangely inspiring, of Questors kneeling before the altar in St. Giles' Cathedral, Edinburgh, in a vigil patterned after the old tradition of knighthood.

It rings a bell somewhere.

Two City Tugs In Ocean Drama

A Panamanian freighter is drifting helplessly in heavy seas 800 miles east of Japan after breaking loose from the Victoria-owned, Yokohama-based tugboat Cambrian Salvor.

The freighter, with between 30 and 40 crewmen aboard, is down by the head with 14 feet of water in number one hold, and a leak in number two hold, according to word received here by the towboat owners.

The Salvor went to her assistance when the freighter ran out of fuel after suffering two mechanical breakdowns on her way to Japan.

ARRIVE THURSDAY

Sudbury II, sister ship to the Salvor and based at Victoria, is fighting her way to the scene and is expected to arrive Thursday. She was at Hiram.

NO FOOD

Exact details of the conditions aboard the freighter are not known, but it is believed the ship has run out of food supplies. There is, of course, no light or heat.

Capt. Harley Slagborne, who has been away from Victoria as master of Sudbury II since last July, returned home by air Saturday.

He has been relieved aboard Sudbury by Capt. Hill Wilson, Master of Cambrian Salvor.

Both tugs are owned by Island Tug and Barge Ltd., Victoria, Vancouver and Yokohama.

Safe Cracking Attempt Fails

An attempt to crack the safe at Veteran Stages Ltd., 728 Herald, was made overnight Monday, probably by the same person who climbed down a skylight at Arnold's Bakery, across the block at 725 Discovery.

At both places nothing was reported missing, police said. A patrol officer found a rear door at Veteran Stages open at 5:20 a.m. He looked in and saw a hammer lying in front of the safe and found the dial had been struck a sharp blow, but the safe had not opened. Entry had been by way of an insecure window.

Entry to the bakery was discovered at 7:55 a.m. as employees showed up for work.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. I would like to know why and since when has the English language adopted the German word "kindergarten."

—N.R.
A. German educator Friedrich Froebel began the kindergarten (garden of children) program in 1837 in Germany to meet educational needs of children aged four to six. It was started by a German in Germany so it has a German name. Kindergartens were established in Great Britain and many other countries within 25 years of Froebel's death in 1852. The word has been in common English use since then.

Q. Could you please inform me where I could obtain information on mental hospitals in Canada other than provincial institutions?—M.P.

A. Provincial departments of health and welfare will be able to provide names and addresses of private mental homes. There is only one in B.C., Hollywood Sanatorium, New Westminster.

Anyone wishing a question answered in this column should send it to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily. All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve problems of legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to dealers.

The ketch, "Dragoon", gets ready for south seas.

FAMILY CRUISE PLANNED

Ketch Dragoon Will Be 'Home'

By MONTE ROBERTS

Victoria is renowned throughout the world as the Capital City of British Columbia, the home of lovely year-round gardens, and the jump-off point for those who go down to the seven seas in small ships.

The latest victims of the lure of far-off oceans are the members of the Bruce family—Vern, perhaps best known here as an automobile racer, his wife, and four daughters, the eldest of whom is 11.

They've talked about a leisurely life aboard ship somewhere down South—perhaps the West Indies—and now they've done something about it.

Moored in the Inner Harbor is their home—the not-so-little boat of their dreams, the tall-masted ketch Dragoon, well-known here when she was sailed by Capt. William Holmes.

In the Dragoon, they hope to leave next August with the bowsprit pointing south as soon as they round Cape Flattery.

Meanwhile, they've sold their shore residence to buy their sea-going home.

While the youngsters finish out their school term, the Bruce address will be the Inner Harbor until March, then Fisherman's Wharf until August.

Meanwhile, there's work a plenty to keep the whole family busy. Dragoon, which has had another owner since being sold by Capt. Holmes, isn't quite the shipshape vessel she was when she left here.

Vern and his helpers are digging in to rectify that, and to make her a ship to delight the eye. An extremely seaworthy boat, Dragoon is also roomy and comfortable inside, an ideal vessel for a family cruise.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Former medical director of the RAF, Sir Philip Livingston, Cowichan, was guest speaker Saturday at the annual meeting of the Victoria Kipling Society.

Sir Philip told the 36 members and guests that during his travels in many parts of the world, he had always found Kipling's descriptions entirely accurate.

Kipling, he said, had always shown "wisdom, sympathy and understanding."

Harbormaster Capt. Ronald Newell today was named chairman of an eight-man Chamber of Commerce group which will canvass Greater Victoria business firms on behalf of the University of Victoria fund drive.

Working with him will be D. R. Abbott, John Copping, Fred Manning, W. C. Means, Conway Parrott, W. A. Penney, William McCall and Eric Mallett.

James Bay PTA will see films today at 8 p.m. taken by Miss Gwen Richards while an exchange teacher in Germany. The meeting will be in South Park School.

Greater Victoria celebrations association holds its annual meeting tonight at 8 in city council chambers. Pandora Street entrance to City Hall will be open for the meeting.

Elected vice-president was Dr. Bill Westwood. Secretary is Alex Steele.

Executive consists of Eric Crawford, George McGee and Fred Ball.

Jean Davis was named junior representative.

The club's annual Valentine dance will be held at Saanich town hall Feb. 12, starting at 9 p.m.

ESQUIMALT NAVAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

Fraser and Margaree return Feb. 9.

Jonquiere returns Jan. 27.

Beacon Hill returns Feb. 13.

Sussexvale, Stettler, Antigonish, Ste. Therese return April 22.

A 74-year-old pedestrian who broke her nose when she fell crossing a downtown street Saturday got treatment at three hospitals.

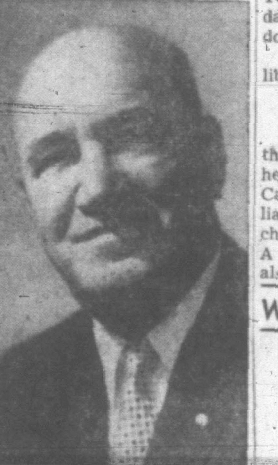

Mrs. Ada Jones, of 8705 East Saanich, who fell at Douglas and Pandora, was given first aid at Jubilee Hospital, further attention at Rest Haven Hospital, which is closer to home, and finally was admitted to St. Joseph's on instruction of her doctor.

Her condition today was good, the hospital said.

R. A. Clarke was named president and Mrs. G. M. Baker vice-president at the recent annual meeting of the League of Roses (Lancs and Yorks).

Mrs. L. Duffill was named second vice-president, Mrs. S. McAllister, treasurer, and Mrs. A. Aspinwall, secretary. Executive members are Mrs. C. Fairhead, Mrs. S. White, F. S. Arthur and Mrs. W. G. Fairhead.

Gary Rowe, 18, of 1324 Carnesew, was fined $50 in city police court today when he pleaded guilty to supplying a 17-year-old boy with a case of beer and a mickey of rye whisky outside Humboldt Street liquor store. Rowe said he bought the liquor himself.

SUPREME COUNSELOR William J. Moore, of Manchester, N.H., of the United Commercial Travellers' Association, will be guest of honor at a dinner of the Victoria chapter, Saturday at 6:30 p.m. in the Pacific Club. He will be accompanied by his wife. Also attending the dinner will be Mrs. Mae Hestekind, supreme counselor of the supreme body of the ladies' auxiliary. Mr. Moore is a past president of Manchester Shrine Club.

Forms are available at motor vehicle licence offices for farmers applying for truck licence discounts, the B.C. Federation of Agriculture reminded farm applicants Monday. Truck licence rates were increased this year and forms mailed to truck owners show these increases. But bona-fide farmers will pay a reduced rate if the forms are used when plates are purchased.

A ninth residential area burglary from the weekend came to light Monday afternoon when Mrs. Sidney Brett, 173 Joseph, told city police $500 and a flashlight were missing from her house. The woman said she had been disturbed in her sleep about 1:30 a.m. Monday, but did not know what had awakened her.

Entrance to the house was through an unlocked garage door. Police found a box of cookies and a flashlight—not the one reported missing—apparently dropped when the thief climbed over a backyard fence in his retreat.

Dr. W. H. Geddes will speak concerning "The University of Victoria, What it Means to You and Your Children," Monday, Jan. 18, at 8 p.m., to Lansdowne Junior High PTA. Meeting will be in the school library.

Willows PTA at 8 tonight in the school auditorium will hear a talk, "Impressions of Canadian Education," by William E. Alexander, an exchange teacher from Scotland. A film "Life in Britain" will also be shown.

Detective Delivers Mail To Right 'Berth' for Sailor

A city detective today took over the role of mailman, for which Mrs. Ena Young, 440 Michigan, is extremely appreciative.

When HMS Newcastle visited here in 1953, a call went out for volunteers to entertain the sailors. The Youngs took Tony Vidler, "a nice country boy" into their home and on a tour up-island.

Tony wrote the Youngs a couple of times, then lost their address.

So he wrote the city detective office, enclosing a map of where he believed they lived—"there's a garage on the corner opposite a little park."

Today a detective knocked on the Youngs' door and made the delivery.

"It was so nice of the police," said Mrs. Young.

ST. JOSEPH'S WAITING LIST HITS NEW HIGH

Waiting list of patients for admittance to St. Joseph's Hospital today is the highest in hospital history.

Dr. E. N. Boettcher, medical superintendent, said there were 150 patients who could not be accommodated.

"Some are fairly urgent cases," he said.

Monday, some surgery had to be postponed until today because operating rooms were on the go all the time.

There has also been a heavy influx of children suffering from respiratory diseases. Twenty-six beds are filled by these cases, he said.

"The population is growing, but the hospital doesn't," St. Joseph's has 448 beds for adults and children.

TCA Flights To Vancouver Fogged Down

TCA Victoria-Vancouver flights were still cancelled shortly before 1 p.m. today due to heavy fog covering the mainland airport.

Visibility was zero.

The fog was not expected to dissipate until later this afternoon.

There had been no flights between Victoria and Vancouver since 6:30 p.m. Monday.

Flights from Victoria to Seattle have been on schedule.

CLOUDS PREDICTED

It landed at the RCAF station, Comox.

One TCA Super Constellation today and one Monday night by-passed Vancouver and landed at Patricia Bay.

Weather outlook here was for clouds this evening with wet snow turning to rain overnight. It will be cloudy Wednesday.

Temperature here Monday night ranged between 25 and 32 degrees and at noon today temperature was 41.

Similar temperatures are expected Wednesday.

Murison Invited To Tory Caucus In Vancouver

Major-General C. A. P. Murison, who is seeking Progressive Conservative candidacy in Victoria in the next provincial election, has been invited to a Tory candidates caucus in Vancouver Jan. 29.

The caucus, which is expected to draw up its labor and power policies and a new policy on the export of natural gas, party leader Deane Finlayson said today.

He said the decision to invite Gen. Murison despite the fact he is not yet officially a candidate (Victoria nominating convention comes in February) was based on his knowledge of municipal affairs. The former reeve of North Cowichan was for two years-president of the UBCM and originator of the Murison Formula for revised provincial-municipal cost-sharing.

BASKETS OF MAIL—including dozens of requests to join the show—were waiting for Ice Capades stars when they arrived in Victoria for opening performance of 19th annual show at Memorial Arena tonight. Mrs. Mary Jones, arena secretary, sorts mail for arrival of performers. Those wishing to audition for the show may do so at 4 p.m. or 11 p.m. Friday. Requirements are: girls between five feet and five feet six inches, 12 to 21 years of age; boys, five feet eight inches to six feet two inches, 16 to 24 years of age.

THETIS LAKE POWER LINE

Suspicion Persists As Storm Subsides

Tempest in a teacup whipped up by proposals to sell B.C. Electric 76½ acres of Thetis Lake park seems to have subsided but conservationists are keeping up a heavy swell of suspicion.

In the first place, BCE says it is not interested in purchasing the land for its overhead transmission lines.

Simultaneously, Austin Curtis, chairman of the waterworks committee which had recommended the sale, says he will oppose any 'easement' for the lines through the park.

CHANGED MIND

Even Ald. Geoffrey Edgell, who supported the sale last week, has changed his mind and is now all in favor of keeping the land.

"I took a second look," he said today.

The easement through the park was the original request of the BCE and outright sale of the land was the idea of the waterworks committee.

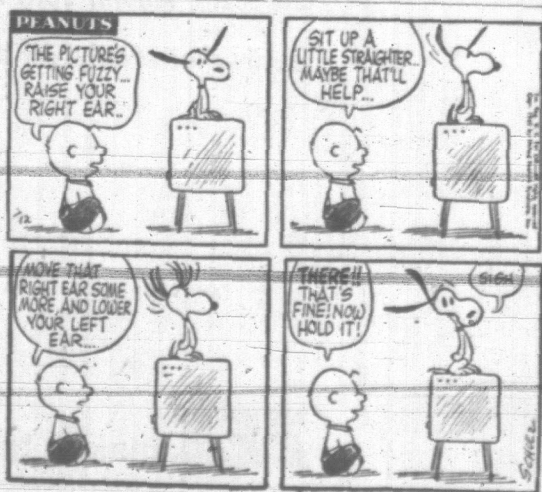

Neither plan would please the Thetis Lake Nature Sanctuary Association. Its spokesman, Dr. William Newton, holds there is little difference between selling land or granting an easement.

INTRUSION

"The transmission line," he said "would be an intrusion on the natural landscape. The virtues of the park are its woodland trails. It offers an attraction which is different from the formal landscape parks such as Beacon Hill."

He said the B.C. Electric should co-operate with the city in finding an alternate route.

"The company also has a responsibility," he said. "It should help keep the Thetis property a natural park. The city needs such a park. It will become a valuable attraction for Victoria in years to come." Ald. Curtis says he suggested the sale because he thought

BABY

By GUY JONES

The crowd, jostling noisily, pressed hard against the garden railings behind Hamilton Place, in London's Hyde Park. Londoners, Australians, Rhodesians and Pakistanis — their homes were spread far and wide, but their eyes at that moment were fixed on a symbol to them all.

The symbol was a white-shawled baby, gurgling happily on the lawn. Her name: Princess Elizabeth Alexandra Mary Windsor, known to us today as Queen Elizabeth II.

But there was another, more subtle symbol to both baby Princess and commoner behind the Royal home at 145 Piccadilly that summer day in 1930. The railings that separated them.

From the day she was born in April, 1926, in a private house at London's Bruton Street (near Bond Street), until she was 14, the Commonwealth's child was a captive of protocol and precedent.

High walls, uniformed guards and car windows shielded her from embarrassing public sentiment. Invitations to functions, no matter of what kind, were refused out of hand. A small number of official studio portraits on her birthdays and other exceptional occasions were reluctantly released for publication.

Nursery 'Revolt'

It was in this cloistered, formal world that today's Queen grew up. But will her third child have to do the same? Will it too be a captive in the gilded cage?

The fact is that the Queen and Prince Philip have together wrought a revolution in the Royal nursery.

There is a world of difference between the upbringing of Prince Charles and Princess Anne and that of the young Princess Elizabeth Alexandra Mary Windsor.

At nine, Princess Anne has been sharing her Palace schoolroom with two little girls (Susan Babington Smith and Carolina Hamilton) who are neither royal nor titled.

At 11, Prince Charles is the first king-to-be to attend a preparatory school — £100-a-term Cheam, in Hampshire, where he studies and plays with, among others, the sons of businessmen and journalists.

This, for Royalty, is a revolution indeed. George VI, the Prince's grandfather, and his great-uncle, the Duke of Windsor, both had private tutors until they were 14 and in that time seldom if ever met the sons of commoners.

Both George III and Queen Victoria lived entirely private childhoods.

The young Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret were never allowed to entertain non-Royal, non-titled or "non-staff" children their own age.

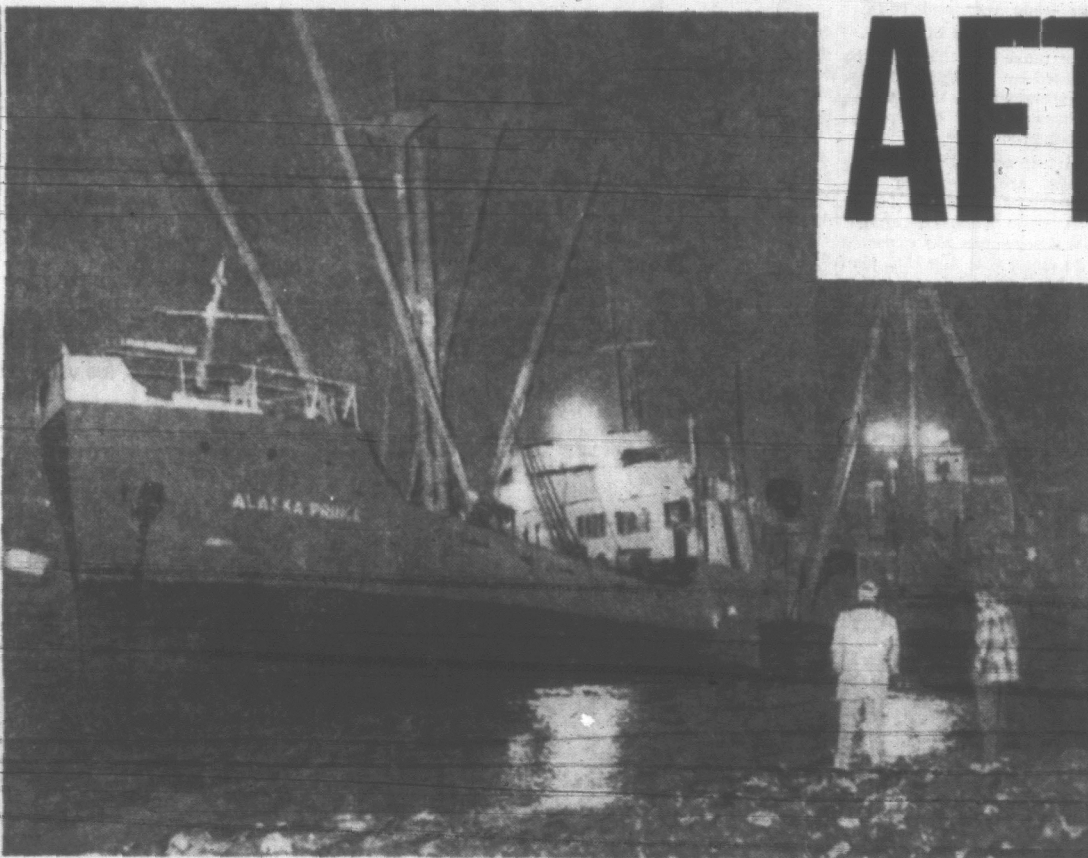

Even when she became a Girl Guide at 11, Elizabeth was allowed to associate only with Guides who belonged to the specially-formed Palace company: relatives, friends of the family and children of the Royal staff — children she would have come across in any case.

The nursery revolution has two main causes: the increasing globe-trotting duties of the Queen, and the influence of Prince Philip, an experimenter by nature.

Time and again since Charles and Anne were born both parents have set out on journeys which their ancestors would have haggled at. Journeys (one of 43,000 miles) which have kept them away from their children for anything from three weeks to five months.

State visits, provincial tours and so on have also accounted

Beached with a gaping hole in her port bow, the Northlands Navigation freighter Alaska Prince was deliberately run aground after collision at entrance to Vancouver harbor Monday night, to avoid sinking. Refloated this morning, she had to be beached again when a temporary soft patch failed to hold. Another attempt was to be made later. (CP Wirephoto)

Two Trawlers
Lost in Storm

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Two big Icelandic trawlers with about 60 men aboard have been unreported for nearly two days in stormy seas off the wind-battered Newfoundland north coast.

RCAF search and rescue headquarters at nearby Torbay said today the trawlers Uranus and Thormodur Godi, both out of Reykjavik, have not been heard from since Sunday.

The 656-ton Uranus carries a crew of 28. There are about 30 men aboard the 543-ton Thormodur Godi.

Aircraft are standing by at Argentia and Torbay, Nfld., and Goose Bay, Labrador, awaiting better weather to start searching for the vessels.

Winds up to 65 miles an hour were reported in the area Monday.

The gales destroyed a $35,000 federal works department wharf at Elliston in Bonavista Bay.

About 21 inches of snow has fallen on some areas since the storm started Saturday. It was still falling today but the weatherman said drizzle and fog were expected later.

MAGNA WINS OUT

Gas Ruling Triggers
Big Program

A $25,000,000 program to bring natural gas to Victoria and Vancouver Island homes by late 1961 was launched late Monday when the provincial government approved a charter for Magna Pipeline Company.

Using a flexible steel pipeline under the straits and crossing Galiano and Salt Spring Islands, the firm will bring Peace River natural gas to the island for the first time. Magna will link with the West-coast Transmission pipeline at Huntingdon in the Fraser Valley.

Magna Pipeline Co. will be a wholesale distributor only; PUC officials explained today. Its first customers, who will retail to consumers in their areas, will be B.C. Electric for Greater Victoria area, and Vancouver Island Gas Company Ltd., Nanaimo.

The Magna portion of the over-all project, bringing the gas from the mainland, will be installed. The company anticipates that 80 to 90 per cent of all new buildings in Greater Victoria will install natural gas fixtures when the pipeline is completed.

'Good News'
Says Mayor

Mayor Percy Scurrell today welcomed the announcement which he said held out some hope of adding to potential development of light industry here.

"I think it's good news for the lower end of Vancouver Island that natural gas is coming. Provided the price is kept economically feasible, it will be helpful in attracting some more light industry to increase the number of jobs."

A cancellation like that is likely to destroy our belief in ferries.

Wonder if that gas pipe from the mainland'll be a two-way job fer when the Legislature's in session?

Th' fear now is that tradin' blocs will produce tradin' blocks.

Princess Elaine
Damaged in Fog

Victoria will be without direct ship connection to Vancouver for at least a week.

CPSS Princess Elaine, which provides one round trip daily during the winter months, was damaged in a Monday night collision with the Northland Navigation passenger-freighter Alaska Prince.

The two ships collided in the fog at the entrance to Vancouver harbor shortly before 10 p.m.

Alaska Prince was beached with a gaping 40-foot hole in her side. The Elaine's bow plates were damaged and she went into drydock today for repairs estimated to take five working days.

NO REPLACEMENTS

The CPR has no ships which could take the Elaine's place. Princess Marguerite, Princess Patricia and Princess Louise are in winter "mothballs". Princess Elizabeth and Princess Joan do not have operating licences. The rest of the "Princess" fleet is engaged in the Nanaimo-Vancouver service.

Marguerite is undergoing spring refit at the Belleville Street docks here but will not be ready for three weeks.

As a stopgap while the Elaine is being repaired, the CPR will operate a bus service from the Belleville Dock leaving at 3:30 p.m. daily to connect with the 6 p.m. Nanaimo ferry.

38 PASSENGERS

Damage to the Elaine was confined to buckled plates, and she was able to proceed to dock in Vancouver under her own steam. There were 38 passengers aboard.

The smaller Alaska Prince (originally the Waterhouse Line freighter Chilkoot) was much more severely damaged. Beached after the collision, the 700-ton vessel was refloated at high tide today.

However, she had to be grounded again after proceeding only a short distance when a "soft patch" apparently blew out.

Mattresses and pillows were used to stuff the hole in the port side of the ship.

BEACHED AGAIN

Apparently the patch did not hold as tugs headed toward drydock with the Alaska Prince after she was refloated. She was beached again inside the harbor entrance.

The tug Goblin took the eight passengers off the Alaska Prince. Her sister tugs, Grant and Black Bass, were also in the area and immediately began salvage operations.

Both vessels were reported to have been travelling at dead slow with visibility practically at zero when the collision occurred. The Alaska Prince was carrying a cargo of food and hospital supplies for Vancouver Island ports.

A mercantile insurance spokesman said if the freighter had been hit farther forward it would have been a total loss.

Winter Grips Europe

LONDON (Reuters) — At least nine deaths were blamed on freezing weather today as Europe shivered in the grip of winter.

Six died in Spain as Alicante had its first snowfall for 34 years and snow blocked roads between Madrid and Barcelona. Even Algeria was hit by snow, and 90-mile-an-hour gusts blew down a wall onto houses in Oran, injuring five persons.

Snow up to seven inches deep covered sections of England, and thousands of miles of road were icebound.

Flood Sweeps
Greek Town;
Heavy Loss

ATHENS (AP) — Rescue teams and salvage crews were rushed today to the stricken town of Comotini in north-east Greece, where floods have destroyed 800 houses and left more than 10,000 homeless.

One person was known dead, four were missing and 10 reported injured.

Comotini, a town of about 35,000 in the region of Thrace, has been turned into a six-foot-deep lake by two days of heavy rains which sent rivers spilling over their banks.

The rampaging waters knocked out bridges, destroyed rail lines, washed away grain-filled storehouses and inundated thousands of acres of cultivated land. Thousands of head of livestock were reported drowned or stranded.

Lost Gun,

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP) — An RCMP corporal testified today that he was twice knocked to the ground, stripped of his uniform and gun, and left in the bush by Daniel O'Connor, 30, later sought as one of the RCMP's most wanted suspects.

Cpl. William F. Hare, now of Dawson Creek, B.C., appeared at the preliminary hearing of O'Connor on a charge of attempted murder. The charge follows an attack on Cpl. Hare at Keremeos, B.C., May 14, 1953.

Cpl. Hare said he first stopped O'Connor after receiving a radio call from Penticton RCMP to check a car with California licence plates.

He took O'Connor to a bank in Keremeos and then asked him to return to Penticton. They left Keremeos, O'Connor in his own car with two children, and Mrs. O'Connor with Cpl. Hare in the patrol car a short distance behind.

O'Connor stopped the car along the highway and, while Mrs. O'Connor took one of the children into the bush, O'Connor produced a black automatic and pointed it at the corporal's waist. Cpl. Hare testified.

NICE, France (UPI) — Soviet space scientist Anatoly Blagonravov said today that French scientists had expressed interest in having a Soviet rocket put a French-made satellite into orbit.

Thieves
Strike
Again

VANCOUVER (CP) — City police and RCMP today investigated the second major art theft here in less than two months as an owner of some of the stolen pieces called for intensified security measures in Canada's galleries.

Stolen from the Vancouver Art Gallery Sunday were two irreplaceable Byzantine icons from the Russian royal family collection, eight paintings and 13 other icons assembled for display by Toronto collector Ian Vorres.

Dr. William Dale, director of the gallery, said the loss "could run as high as $15,000." All the works were insured.

The thieves apparently used the same technique as those who stole $40,000 worth of unrecovered paintings from the University of British Columbia gallery Nov. 10.

The technique of hiding in the gallery at closing time and then working undisturbed apparently was used also in Canada's biggest art theft at Toronto last September when $630,000 worth of paintings were stolen. These were later recovered.

FRAMES FOUND

None of the paintings in the UBC theft has been recovered, although some of the frames were later found by children in an east-end dump.

Two of the icons stolen Sunday belong to Grand Duchess Olga, youngest sister of the late Czar Nicholas II of Russia. She lives in Cooksville, Ont. The paintings were the gallery's property, and included works of the English masters William Hogarth, George Romney and William Turner.

Police found a rear door jammed on the inside of the gallery, but no windows or doors had been forced to gain entry.

Commented Dr. Dale: "I'm afraid this may fix Vancouver as far as the showing of private collections is concerned."

In Toronto, Mr. Vorres said that unless precautions are stepped up collectors "will think twice before handing over their treasures to art galleries in Canada."

SHIP CRASH

ward she probably would have snapped in half.

Passengers aboard the Alaska Prince told a graphic story of fear in the darkness.

"There was a tremendous bang and a terrific impact," said Mrs. Lorraine Smith. "Then the lights went out."

"I think that was the worst thing—it was so dark. It was just like a dream."

Mrs. Smith was in a cabin only a few feet from the point of impact when the accident occurred.

"I heard the engines going in reverse," said Ray Skinner, Mrs. Smith's brother-in-law, who was in the same cabin. "The next thing I knew I was lying under a bunk."

The 19 passengers and the six crew members were taken off the freighter by rescue boats.

Mr. Skinner and Mrs. Smith were returning to their homes at Alert Bay, B.C., after hospital treatment here.

"She rolled over on her side and everything went flying," said purser Richard Procopie of New Westminster. "But the passengers remained calm. There was no panic."

The Department of Transport was expected to name a board of inquiry to investigate the collision.

Neither the CPR nor Northland Navigation Company, owners of the Alaska Prince, commented on the collision.

But Capt. Edward S. Woodman, 56, of Victoria, skipper of the ferry, said:

"TO BOTTOM"

"If we had been going full ahead I'm afraid we'd have sent the Prince straight to the bottom."

Capt. Woodman said he knew from radar and radio contact that the Prince was riding out on a four-knot ebb tide.

"So as not to congest the Narrows, I reduced speed and gave her a chance to clear."

My vessel was almost at a dead stop and I was in danger of losing control in steering.

"I put on slow speed but the tide caught me and swung the ship around. I was manoeuvring to back out but if I'd moved astern I would have gone into Prospect Point."

Japan Trade Policy For 'Orderly Growth'

(From Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker said today his government welcomes the "orderly growth" of Japanese sales in Canada but must bear in mind that "excessive sales" of Japanese goods can have a "disruptive effect" on certain sectors of the economy.

The prime minister made the statements in a letter replying to W. J. Parker, president of Manitoba Pool Elevators.

Mr. Diefenbaker wrote to the prime minister on behalf of the Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta wheat pools and the United Grain Growers Limited. He registered objection to the "voluntary" quotas which Japan had been compelled, under pressure from the Canadian government, to apply against certain of its commodities exported for sale in this country.

The pool president pointed out that Japan is the only market in the world at the present time which "gives any promise of taking increasing quantities of wheat."

Mr. Diefenbaker replied:

IMPORTS FREE

"Japan maintains export quotas on a number of products shipped to certain countries other than Canada, and Japanese sales are regulated by import controls in most other countries. Canada does not restrict imports from Japan, and accords Japan most friendly nation treatment."

However for certain textile and other products Japanese sales have expanded at such a rate as to be a source of serious injury to Canadian producers. In such circumstances it was found desirable to discuss the solution to this problem with the Japanese authorities in order to ensure more reasonable participation in the Canadian market.

"Accordingly Japan maintains a number of voluntary quotas on exports to Canada in the interests of the orderly development of our trade relations."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the government had actively promoted sales of Canadian wheat to Japan. Exports of wheat and flour to Japan had risen substantially from $54,000,000 in 1957 to $63,000,000 in 1958 and will be "considerably higher in 1959." By the end of November, 1959, sales were valued at over $64,000,000.

Japan was also finding a growing market for her products in Canada. By the end of September, 1959, Canada's imports from Japan were $76,000,000, as compared with $70,000,000 for the full year in 1958, and $62,000,000 in 1957.

This was a record of substantial expansion and of trade at a high level, Mr. Diefenbaker said.

THE QUEEN'S BABY

for many shorter absences of up to a week.

Compare that with the number of times that the Queen was parted from her parents for more than a day or two right up to the time of her wedding.

Those partings were so few that they stand out as landmarks in her life.

She even went home to Windsor to sleep every night when she was in the ATS during the war. (The khaki-clad ATS—Auxiliary Territorial Service—was Britain's wartime women's army corps. The Queen drove army trucks.)

But it is to Prince Philip that the main cause of the Royal nursery revolution can be attributed. It was he who said: "We want him (Prince Charles) to go to school with other boys of his generation and to learn to live with other children to absorb from childhood the discipline imposed by education with others."

Friends to Tea

He it was who said that these words were put into effect, and who encouraged the child Prince to bring classmates "home to tea."

He it was who introduced Charles and Anne at an unprecedented early age to the mysteries of the world outside.

For instance, Charles' first public appearance came when he was two—a visit to London Zoo. When he was five, he sailed with Anne to Tobruk to meet his parents at the end of their Commonwealth tour. At six, he saw his first rugby match, was taken to watch the underground trains, and went for a holiday cruise in the Royal yacht, Britannia.

At seven he met the visiting Khrushchev and Bulganin and saw ballerina assoluta Galina Ulanova at Covent Garden.

The Queen was 12 when she was first allowed to ride on London's underground system; 20 when she was allowed to make her first public bus ride. In fact, when at 18 she made only eight public appearances without her parents.

Conditioning

This unique liberalization will doubtless be continued with the third Royal baby. For it is now accepted that, by getting Royal children accustomed early to the limelight, their later, publicity-hounded years will be more bearable.

Training in the art of being Royal begins at a very early age. And the trainer in the case of the Queen's third child is expected to be a soft-spoken, dark-haired Scotsman who today lives quietly on the second floor of Buckingham Palace.

She is Mabel Anderson, 33, whose duties for 10 years as personal maid to Princess Anne and Prince Charles have been gradually diminished as the Royal children have grown older.

Courtesy 'Mrs.'

News of the impending birth meant that Mabel's whole life would be changed. For, with Charles away at Cheam and Anne now in her 10th year, there would have been less and less need for her services.

Curiously, "Mrs." Anderson (she is not married; the "Mrs." is a courtesy title given to the senior members of the domestic and nursery staffs) had had no special training for or experience of being in sole charge of a Royal baby.

Previously, she was assistant to Nurse Helen ("Nanna") Lightbody and the tall, dark Glaswegian Katherine ("Miss P.") Peebles, who together began the Royal children's training.

Born at Bootle (Lancashire), the daughter of a Scottish police constable, she went first to a council school and then, when her father was killed in the blitz, moved with her mother to Longmorn, in Scotland, and took a two-year course in domestic science.

Mabel was actually out of work, with her name on the books of an Edinburgh employment agency, when she was chosen as assistant to Nurse Lightbody, who has since left the Palace.

Why was she chosen? It is said that the Queen—then Princess Elizabeth—chose Mabel personally because she had heard of the Scots girl's quietly efficient and unassuming ways.

Certainly, Mabel Anderson has brought into the palace a fresh and unassuming approach to the Royal children.

Mabel will take over the Royal baby from hospital nurses when it is a month old. From then on, with the aid of a second nurse, she will fill the role of mother whenever the Queen herself is unable to do so.

She will change the baby's nappies, feed it and guard it through the night—probably with the aid of a microphone over the baby's bed so sensitive that it picks up even the breathing and relays it to her.

Mabel's training methods are severe and she is not to be contradicted. Yet she never smacks her charges or even raises her voice to them. Hers is a quiet authority which Charles and Anne still obey with alacrity.

'Mother, Nurse'

The poise, tact, ease—all the gracious qualities which traditionally distinguish our Royal house—spring from this early training. The child will be taught early the virtues of punctuality, of good manners, of wide knowledge. And, as far as it is concerned, Mabel will be the criterion.

Besides that, she will patch up the child's scratches and bruises, will sleep nearby when it is ill, supervise the buying of new clothes and act as adviser on the child's small problems.

Mabel Anderson will be a new woman in a new role. It is an illustration of the fresh breeze that today blows through the Royal nursery.

cost an estimated $14,000,000. The company has given assurance the line will be completed by the fall of 1961, although the PUC has allowed the firm until June 30, 1962, for completion.

Terms of the PUC recommendation, approved by cabinet, call for the firm to make firm contracts for supply of pipe and natural gas, and to file financing plans with the PUC before May 1, 1960.

A Victoria BCE official said: "This will be a great thing for Vancouver Island. We anticipate the acceptance will parallel that of Vancouver, where 80 to 90 per cent of all new buildings installed natural gas when it became available.

HOUSES TOO

"Because of the low installation cost, it should also entice a large number of householders to convert—especially those now using manual fuels."

The official rates will be competitive with "any other fuel used here."

The PUC decision was announced following hearings in Victoria.

Only other applicant was Island Transmission Company Ltd. of Nanaimo. The firm had proposed to construct a $18,000,000 welded steel pipe line, while Magna proposes a flexible steel line. A cable ship will be employed for the submarine portion of the line, which will follow the same route as the B.C. Electric submarine supply cable.

The Magna project includes supply lines to Nanaimo and Victoria from a 3,000-horsepower compression station at Ladner.

There will be a 10-inch line to the shore, two six-inch lines to the edge of Roberts Bank, two 4.85-inch lines to Galiano Island, an eight-inch line across Galiano, two 4.85-inch lines across Trincormall Channel, an eight-inch line across Salt Spring Island, two 4.85-inch lines across Stuart Channel and an eight-inch land line to Westholme.

The natural gas will be piped south from Westholme to Bamerton and north to Nanaimo. From Bamerton it will submerge again in flexible line to cross Saanich Inlet and rise again at Partridge Point south of Brentwood.

my service revolver out of its holster," the policeman said. O'Connor freed one hand and fired, but the shot missed.

STRUCK AGAIN

They fought again until Cpl. Hare was knocked to the highway, suffering a deep cut across his nose. He said he was lifted to his feet and forced off the highway before being knocked to the ground again by a blow to the back of the head.

"Once in the bush, O'Connor seemed undecided what to do with me. First he said he'd tie me up, then that he'd shoot me."

Eventually, O'Connor allegedly took the corporal's gun, forced him to remove his tunic and had Mrs. O'Connor move the patrol car off the road.

"He then made me march further into the bush, and that's the last I saw of them."

The hearing was to continue.

Defecting Red Dies in Plane

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—A Chinese Communist pilot lost his life today in bidding for freedom with a crash-landing of his MIG jet fighter on Formosa.

The ministry said the MIG took off from the big Communist air base at Lukiao, on the mainland coast between Formosa and Shanghai, and crash-landed 55 minutes later near Yilan, Formosa.

Doctor Hurt In Car Crash

DUNCAN—A Lake Cowichan doctor sustained a broken collar bone Sunday when his car hit an icy patch of road and skidded into a ditch on Chesterfield Street near Alexander School.

Dr. J. J. Morrow is in King's Daughters' Hospital.

The car was not badly damaged.

Gaspar Martin, Cowichan Bay, escaped injury Monday when his car hit a concrete bridge abutment south of here.

Police said he had been charged with careless driving as a result of the accident which demolished the car.

WIRE BRIEFS

Japan to Protest Russ Rocket Shot

TOKYO (UPI)—Foreign Minister Aichihiro Fujiyama indicated today Japan will protest Russia's plan to test-fire rockets into a "danger zone" in the central Pacific.

Fujiyama told the cabinet he will notify the Kremlin that restriction of traffic in a sizeable area of the central Pacific would be "very inconvenient" for Japan.

N.W.T. to Get Fluoridation

OTTAWA (UPI)—The council of the Northwest Territories decided today to fluoridate drinking water in order to help combat tooth decay in the north.

Knut Lang of Aklayik, who backed the move, said tooth decay was becoming more prevalent as Indians and Eskimos switched to the white man's food.

Tories Involved in Choice of Premier

QUEBEC (CP)—Jean Lesage, Quebec Liberal leader, said today Progressive Conservative party representatives figured in political councils at Quebec City preceding the choice of Antonio Barrette last week as Union Nationale party leader, and premier of Quebec.

Jewish Cemetery Desecrated

NEW YORK (AP)—Nearly 100 headstones and grave markers in a Jewish cemetery on Staten Island were found defaced today with yellow-painted swastikas and various words in German.

Seaman Tries to Stab N.Y. Judge

NEW YORK (AP)—A merchant seaman today attempted to stab federal district Judge John M. Cashin at the U.S. courthouse on Foley Square. The assailant fled and FBI agents began combing the city for him.

The seaman, identified as Cecil R. Hall, 56, of New York, was the plaintiff in a personal injury suit.

'Queen of Drug Racket' Slain in U.K.

LONDON (AP)—Mrs. Frances Tucker, self-styled queen of London's drug racket, was battered and burned to death today in her apartment in a run-down tenement building.

Scotland Yard began rounding up known dope peddlers and addicts.

ACROSS THE PROVINCE

Blasting Caps Stolen by Yeggs?

(From CP Dispatches)
 VANCOUVER—Police said Monday that 3,000 blasting caps and electric detonators, taken from an explosive firm's warehouse in nearby Ladner several weeks ago, may be in the hands of safe crackers in Vancouver.

Police recovered 1,500 of the dangerous caps and appealed to parents in the area to check children's clothing and play areas. They failed to turn up any more of the caps.

Meanwhile, police said a rifle mounted on a tripod was used by expert safecrackers to blast a tunnel into a bank vault.

A 30-06-calibre rifle equipped with a silencer was fired several times to loosen building blocks in the wall of a vault in a branch of the Toronto-Dominion Bank. A total of 39 safety deposit boxes were forced open and an undetermined amount of cash and securities stolen over the weekend.

WICKS CHALLENGED

PRINCE GEORGE—The Prince George local of the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) has asked Labor Minister Wicks to cite one instance where political opinions have resulted in replacement of a member of the union's safety committee.

This minister said last week one cause of a high fatality rate in the forests was a breakdown in the safety committee. He said members of the union who were dedicated to safety have been replaced on the committee because of politics.

FINANCE PROBE URGED

VANCOUVER—Provincial Liberal leader Ray Perrault Monday night called for a Royal Commission on education finance in British Columbia.

He said education "must be taken off the dole and placed on a solid financial basis."

RESCUED NON-SWIMMER

Heroism Award To Ex-Victorian

Former Victorian and now superintendent of schools for Campbell River, William Reid, 43, today was named recipient of the Royal Humane Society bronze medal for heroism in rescuing a companion from drowning.

Last July 1 at Deep Cove he saved non-swimmer H. M. Evans, registrar of the provincial education department, while both were on a fishing trip.

Mr. Reid at that time was an inspector of schools here. He was previously principal of Lansdowne Junior High.

Mr. Evans was in a skiff about 50 yards from shore, approaching their larger fishing boat when choppy waters swamped the skiff.

Mr. Reid saw what was happening from shore. Mr. Evans, fully-clothed, went under.

The Victoria inspector plunged in and swam to the drowning man's aid. He was unconscious when reached.

A nearby resident, George Wellburn, came out in his boat and picked the pair out of the water.

Mr. Reid was born in Victoria, educated here, and served as a captain overseas.

Christmas Crash Sparks $55 Fine
 PORT ALBERT—Thomas Watts, Sr., was fined a total of $55 on two counts here Thursday when convicted of being an Indian in possession of liquor and careless driving.

Fines followed a Christmas Day car crash in which Watts' truck rolled across a lawn, over a rocky and into a mud-hole.

In city police court Monday: Percy A. Wilkinson, HMCS Naden, $35 for careless driving and $20 for driving without a licence.

In Esquimalt police court Monday: Raymond Moretti, 754 Fort, $50 for careless driving and $25 for driving without a licence.

Austin Lee Fultz, 1621 Fernwood, $50 and licence suspension for careless driving.

Mr. Perrault said in a statement that reiterated remarks made in a speech to a Young Liberal meeting earlier, "the government should meet with representatives of provincial school boards and municipalities to establish the commission terms of reference."

APPLES IN RIVER
 PRINCETON—Salvage operations were started Monday on the banks of the Similkameen River here where two trailers loaded with apples plunged off the highway when the brakes of a Canadian Freightways tractor locked.

The trailers slid down a 40-foot embankment Sunday and apples from one of the units spewed over the bank.
